

Campus Scenes - A Photo-Essay

L-R Vickie McLaughlin, Gail Robinson, and Merner Donnell Test serving line.

Here is just a tiny peek into the lively, spicy side of life at Bennett. These moments of lighter living seem to occur most often when the gloomy, tension filled days of despair make college life almost unbearable.

The Freshmen, plagued by standardized tests the first few weeks of their college careers, deserved a change of pace. A happier medium was reached as the Freshmen were honored at the annual Freshman reception at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Issaic H. Miller. The lovely ladies, caught by the camera, seem to radiate the gaiety of the evening.

The Freshmen, also, found an escape from depression in their annual talent show. However, this event provided relaxation for the entire campus. The talented young ladies presented a wide range of acts -- including a memorable imitation of James Brown.

And guests of the campus must be remembered for the part they played in brightening the atmosphere. Who would dare argue the point that Julian Bond or George Shirley rendered immense pleasure? Why, just look at them.

Last, but not least, in the minds of many Bennett Belles was--and perhaps still is--the College Party. The smiles of the party participants, shown relaxing from the dance floor, affirm the success of this social event of the year.

All seems well at the freshmen reception if smiles are any indication.

Civil Rights Activist, Julian Bond is surrounded by 'Belles' during his recent campus appearance.

Phyllis Ford makes like James Brown on freshmen talent night.

George Shirley shakes hands at reception given in his honor by Dr. and Mrs. Miller who are shown in background.
