

Productive, busy semester for Social Science Division

LaTasha Gordon
Student Reporter

The Division of Social Sciences has been on the move with several different activities and programs this semester.

The Division began by welcoming two new faculty: Matthew Redinger as assistant professor of history, and Yusef Talukdar as associate professor of accounting.

Now the division has 14 full-time faculty, and nine hold the terminal degree in their field of studies.

Sixty-four percent of the faculty hold doctorate degrees, making the division closer to the minimum percentage of 70 percent proposed by the College.

Baffour Agyeman-Duah who serves as head of the division said, "My colleagues and I are working hard to strengthen the programs of the division. We've made a lot of positive changes, but there's still room for improvement."

Agyeman-Duah, who is also an assistant professor political science, recently represented the social science division of Bennett College when he presented a research paper at the 1993 International Studies Association Southern Conference at Maxwell Air Force Base in Montgomery, Ala.

He also signed a contract with the University Press of America to publish his 240-page book dealing with the Cold War policy of the United States arming other countries for proxy activities.

Other faculty members are actively participating in various programs as well.

Victoria Burke, acting chair of Social Work and Sociology, completed a faculty internship with the bureau of Land Management of the Department of the Interior in Phoenix.

Micheal Reed, assistant professor of psychology, served as assistant director of the Math Science Scholars Program's summer camp program here on Bennett's campus.

"This program was a great experience for me and an even greater one for the children," Reed said.

"Some of the kids were clearly turned on to careers in math and science."

The majors in the division are as active as their faculty. Students in the Psychology Department participated in several different summer programs including internships at Bowling Green State University in the Graduate Professional Opportunity Program; NHLBI Behavioral Medicine in the Department of Epidemiology and Clinical Application; the University of South Carolina Department of Psychology for Experimental Psychology;

Purdue University at the UNCF Summer Research Program in Indianapolis; and the National Institute of Health.

Last spring and summer three students in the division served as interns at the White House, two at the Department of State, and one at the U. S. Embassy in Australia.

Two student members of the Political Pacesetters Club accompanied Daniel Figgins, professor of political science, at a meeting with the Voter's Services Committee.

Social Sciences is made up of eight departments: Political Science, Economics, Business, Sociology, Social Work, Psychology, Accounting and History.

"We will probably reach the goal this year," she said. "We are pretty much on track."

Each fund-raising goal is based on what was raised the previous year by 10 to 15 percent ration. According to Colson, this year's UNCF Telethon's goal is $50,000.

The UNCF Telethon will be Jan. 8.
