Two new books offer words of wisdom to make you happier

Critic's Corner
reviews & previews

(NAPSA)-With the new millenium approaching, many authors are releasing books of affirmations and quotes. Some of the latest in this trend focus on personal growth and finance. Here are some excerpts:

From Golden Nuggets (Templeton Foundation Press, $12.95):

Expect the best and your positive outlook opens the door to opportunity.

A problem that occurs in your life may simply be a question that life asks you. However, anxiety can make solutions seem elusive and pessimism can be a block to embracing the part of ourselves that already knows the answers.

Your positive outlook can open doors to opportunity that fear might otherwise tightly lock.

Forgiveness plays a vital role in our life. It may take varying lengths of time for us to realize the spiral of holding more tightly to hurts we have sustained only brings grief to ultimately it is the individual stocks that determine the market, not vice versa. Value is inherent in each individual stock and varies considerably among investment opportunities.

"Make your life decisions based on your own clear assessments, not on popular trends. Don't follow the crowd as you weave your way through life. The crowd does not always make the best decision and they often are not thinking about the highest good when making them. To experience the value in a situation or person requires more than a knowledge of general opinion.

It requires an attempt to gather information, grasp nuances and subtleties, and have the courage to make up your own minds."

These two books and others with similar themes are available at bookstores or by calling 800-621-8476.

all parties, ourselves included.

From Spiritual Investments: Wall Street Wisdom from the Career of Sir John Templeton By Gary Moore. (Templeton Foundation Press, $12.95):

Buy real value in stocks. Do not be influenced by market trends or economic outlook. While individual stocks may be pulled along momentarily by a strong bull market,
