replaced. Also, the holes in the ceilings have been repaired, and new carpet has been installed in the entrance to the parlor. "The windows in the basement of Cone Hall will be replaced, March 14, and a contractor was asked to review the basement windows," Scott said.

In Pfeiffer Hall the front pump sewer has been repaired. The basement has also been disinfected, and the washing machines were repaired or replaced. Ceilings were also fixed.

In Player Hall things were removed from a storage room in the basement. "This space will be considered for possible installations of a study area," Scott said. Scott said that she announced in the fall and again at this year's Convocation Est that this year was a time of change, both long and short term.

Changes have been made since the student protests but there are still many things that are in the process of being changed, Scott said.

Memer Hall is still being repaired. A wall cabinet that was pulling the sink tables will be replaced.

During the protests, students said that there are not enough staff and resources to keep the dorms cleaned properly. "I have said to the community and to the Board of Trustees 'You do not have enough people to do the work here on a regular basis,' Scott said. "The College has a $12 to 14 million budget to keep this school in tip-top shape."

We are advertising for a facilities manager, someone who will be responsible to look at things and make sure that they are done."
