

CHATHAM MARKS UP THREE WINS

Defeat East Carolina Teachers, Catawba and The Famous Blue Sox

The Chatham Blanketeers, under the pitching of Stockton, Neil and Johnson, were winners over East Carolina Teachers College, Catawba College and Conover here April 27, May 3 and May 4, respectively.

The E. C. T. C. game was featured by the pitching of Stockton, who held the invaders to five scattered hits as the Blanketeers triumphed 7 to 1. The Teachers scored their lone run in the fourth when Stowe tripled and Ridenhour flied to right field.

Stockton, with two for three, Fitzgerald, and Fred Hambright with two for four led the hitting for Chatham. R. Hodges led the teachers two for four.

In the Catawba game May 3, Chatham won 9 to 6. Neil pitching for the Blanketeers, held Catawba to seven hits while his mates collected 11. The Blanketeers scored three in the second, Catawba tied the score in the third, the tie being broken in the fifth when the Blanketeers added six runs.

Fred Hambright, with three for four, and Parker two for three, led the hitting for Chatham. Garland led Catawba, with two for five.

Featured by the hard hitting of Stockton, the spectacular fielding of Gough and the brilliant hurling of Johnson, the Blanketeers trimmed the famous Conover Blue Sox Saturday six to one.

Johnson held Conover to six scattered hits while Chatham rapped out 12 safeties.

Stockton went on a wild hitting rampage in the victory attack, getting four hits out of five times up. J. Bolick led his teammates with two hits.

Blanketeers Defeat Carolina By 8 To 1

The Chatham Blanketeers, after dropping the opening game of a two-game series with Carolina April 19, hit their stride the following day to walloper the Tar Heels 8 to 1.

Led by the pitching of Johnson, Chatham held Carolina to only one score which came in the first inning when Vick tripled and came home on Rand's single.

Chatham took the lead in the

THIS AND THAT

Was pleasantly surprised to have Walt Burgiss offer an article on gardening for publication, think it was sporting of him to take the trouble. Any of you who take an interest in your garden will do well to pay attention to what he has to say, as gardening is his hobby and he has given it plenty of time and study.

Incidentally it is a pity that those of us who have a little ground attached to our houses are not more interested in gardening second when H. Hambright and Johnson walked and Robbins got a triple. After that the Blanketeers were never headed.

the work is healthful and pleasant and brings profitable rewards in vegetables and flowers. A good gardener is an asset and an advertisement to his community, as nothing catches and pleases the eye so much as a flourishing garden.

Talking of hobbies, that is a subject worth thising and thating about. A good hobby is very often the difference between happiness and misery. Probably nothing pays more dividends as worth while reading, especially for men. As for women I always did have a soft spot in my heart for girls who made a hobby of cooking, though judging by my waist line, I never met enough of them.

Well, so far no war; I have a

WALT BURGISS ON HOW TO GARDEN

Proper Preparation and Care Nets Big Returns In Growing Beautiful Flowers

By Walter F. Burgiss

With Easter and Tulip time come the thrill of seeing the finest blooms of the whole year. I think that the Tulips this year were the finest I have seen.

Now that they have started to shed their blooms, it is time to think about fine Tulips for next year. As soon as the blooms drop off, cut the seed pods off, so that the growth will go into making a larger and more healthy bulb.

When the leaves begin to die down, cut the stem down to one inch above the ground, and plant annual flowers in the bed, the annuals will soon grow up and hide the barrenness of the bed, and the shade they provide will help to protect the bulbs.

Better still, allow the leaves to die and dry up then dig up the bulbs and store until late fall and replant. Tulips will run out in a few years if they are not dug up and replanted every year.

Dahlia planting time will soon be over. There is no certain time to plant Dahlias. They should be planted after there is no danger of frost, or cold spells.

If your Dahlia root clusters were dug up and stored last fall it will be necessary for you to wait until the eyes begin to appear, then divide the roots by mutting them apart with a sharp knife leaving an eye attached to each root that you aim to plant. Plant the root with the eye turned up. Plant so that the eye will be about six inches deep, cover with about three inches of soil, and then fill up the hole as the plant grows. You can set your stakes at planting time or wait until later. Dahlias need good loose garden soil and plenty of fertilizer. I mix about two tablesneaking idea those European politicians are scared of me. I think it would be a fine idea to have Carl Poindexter call a conference of the leading European statesmen, and in order to keep their minds off their troubles, have a good old fashioned game of high dice. I always did want to see Hitler and Mussolini without their bombs. I am sure they would feel so unwarlike.
