

BLANKETEERS BEAT LYNCHBURG

Take First Game at Lynchburg
By One Run Margin and Come Back to Win 13-2 In Second

Meeting the touted Shoemen of Craddock-Terry on their home field at Lynchburg Saturday and Sunday, the Chatham Blanketeers lifted their first scalp of the series to win 7-6 in the first game and came back Sunday to completely rout their opponents 13 to 2.

In Saturday's game a six run outburst in the eighth gave the Blanketeers their victory in a game marked by the exceptional defensive play of the Lynchburg team. Corky Cornelius, with a circuit blow, claimed a large share of the glory by scoring the tying and winning runs.

Stockton started for Chatham and although not hit hard he let the Shoemen run wild about the bases, six stolen bags being attributed directly to him, all leading to scores. He did not come out for the fifth and Campbell took over the mound, yielding only two hits in five innings, and topping off his performance by retiring the side in the last two innings.

Weston led for Chatham at bat with three singles, but Cornelius was the most troublesome player to retire. The former Duke ace went to bat five times, slammed out a homer, walked three times and reached first base on an error. Bond, for Lynchburg, pounded out a double and a single to lead his mates with the stick.

Sunday Chatham took the field to give the Shoemen their worst defeat in the history of the club. Two Lynchburg pitchers, Mosby and Garbee, were unable to hold Chatham in check and they were further handicapped by sloppy fielding on the part of their mates.

Chatham slammed up seven markers in the second inning, at the same time slamming Mosby off the mound with only one man retired. Garbee, coming in to halt the parade across home plate did fairly well until the sixth when Chatham put together some long hits, which, coupled with some costly misplays, netted them four more runs.

Southard, on the mound for Chatham, was complete master of the Shoemen and but for two errors at short, would have had

"Over The Bounding Main"

Although the waves of the Yadkin river, where the picture above was taken, may not be so bounding, Walt Burgiss and Jake Brown, builders of the boat above which they christened "Chatham Homespun," are planning to take it to the beach this summer to aid in advertising Chatham products. They'll find plenty of bounding waves there. Jake, by the way, is the guy in the boat.

Tells How Employees Can Help Advertise

Dobson Winds Up Stay At Raleigh By Seeing Many Members of Legislature Wearing Chatham Homespun Suits

I wonder how many of us who are employed in the actual manufacture of the many Chatham products ever stopped to think how far reaching our service might be in the departments of Company, other than that in which we are actually employed.

We are all proud of our mill and I have observed that we all most always make it a point to show it to our out of town guests. This is very fine. I have my first one to see who was not favorably impressed. This is not only a good way to entertain but a fine advertisement for the Company. It leaves an everlasting impression of Chatham Blankets, Chatham Homespun or any other Chatham product. There are a great many ways we can help advertise and sell Chatham products. As an illustration I will relate a recent experience.

Soon after going to Raleigh as a member of the 1935 General Assembly, I made it a point to see to it that the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House were wearing Chatham Homespun suits. These suits were made to order and I have never seen more perfect fits. They took a great deal of pride in showing them to other members of the Assembly, invariably finishing up by saying: "It's a Chatham Homespun and can be bought locally from Noel Clothing Co., for $29.50." This seemed to start the ball rolling and members started buying our suits until I will venture to say that by the end of the four months that we were there at least one-third of the members were wearing a Chatham Homespun suit. I would always notice for new suits and would then approach

The Poison to Use

For the chewing insects on plants and flowers, and on vegetables that are not to be eaten with the spray on them, we would recommend a spray that carries arsenate of lead as the "stomach poison". For plants such as beans and the control of the Mexican bean beetle, we have successfully used magnesium arsenate.

Use this poison as a spray and cover the foliage of the plants thoroughly, both underneath and on top. Use as per the directions on the package in which the poison is packed. Do not try to use a smaller amount than the directions call for, as you are liable to get a spray that will be ineffective. Arsenate of lead can be used for the same purpose as magnesium arsenate, but must never be used on fruits that are to be eaten. A good "stomach

Mr. Chatham Urges Importance of Levy

Below is a letter written by Mr. Thurmond Chatham, president of the Chatham Manufacturing Co., and appearing in the Winston-Salem paper last week in regard to the supporting of the school supplement of Winston-Salem:

Mr. Agnew Bahnson, Chairman, Citizens' Committee for School

Supplement,
Winston-Salem, N. C.

Dear Agnew:

It is gratifying to see that a citizens' committee has been formed to work with the school supplement election. There is no question but what our schools are deteriorating for lack of funds and it is not fair to our children or teachers to permit this condition to continue.

All of our property values and the future development of Winston-Salem is uncertain unless we have a good school system.

You can count on my full cooperation. Don't hesitate to call on me for any service I can render.

Wishing you much success, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
Thurmond Chatham
