

Ecusta Fire Department Is Always Ready For Action

On Firing Line

Don't get excited! There's no fire yet, thank goodness. But in the event of a fire, our boys want to be ready to lick it. The above picture was made during a fire drill and shows Dewey Burns on the ladder and Herbert Finck and Elmer Gevedon at the top.

Standing in front of one of the many Hydrant houses located at strategic places around the plant are Ernest Burch, left, who is general inspector and D. J. Luther, right, who is inspector of the Fibre Warehouse. These men make regular inspections throughout the plant and warehouses. The small buildings are equipped with modern fire-fighting tools.
