

Electricity For Plant Is Generated Here

At the top is a view of the Turbine Room showing termination of overhead steam lines from Boiler House. The photo in the center of the page shows Turbine generator number 1. Walter Kay, senior operator, is standing by. The bottom view shows Turbine generator number 2 and a portion of the distribution switchboard. This generator has a tremendous capacity of production. One of the booster pressure reducing valves is shown in the center.

Turbine Generator Number One And Switchboard

Turbine Generator Number Two And Switchboard

Endless Chatter

All the girls who were privileged to attend the bowling banquet said it was a wonderful success and not just because the Endless girls won so many prizes either! What about Glen Allender winning twice in bingo after walking away with the lion's share of the tournament prizes! We can think of about three upsets during the bowling season, but the speakers failed to mention, but the Stars can't expect a perfect record every year.

The girls are going into vacations full swing. Makes us think it's summer until we go outside. Mary Sue Thorne reports a nice trip to Pensacola, Fla., to attend her sister's wedding. Dot Jones visited her aunt near Chattanooga last week end. Ruth Jones says she needs another vacation to recuperate after spending her week having her house painted.

We wonder if Roma Whitman has been finding a lot of four leaf clovers lately. It seems to us she is mighty lucky.

Notice To Employees

The company gives every employee who goes to work for an insurance policy. This policy increases $100.00 per year for five years. Until recently, the employee has been receiving a certificate each year reminding him that his insurance had increased another $100.00. This certificate was not necessary because the insurance policy, on page 2, states that the insurance increases $100.00 per year. It was merely to remind employees that their insurance had increased. Due to the scarcity of paper and the shortage of help, the insurance company has discontinued sending out these certificates. Quite a few of our employees have been disturbed because they failed to receive these certificates as usual. We would like to explain that the insurance increases $100.00 per year just the same as if the certificate were received, and the discontinuance of the certificate does not affect the insurance in any way.

—Personnel Office