

BARKER CHILDREN HOLLYWOOD-BOUND

Betty, Marie, Charles Show Potentialities Required For Success In Movies

One usually thinks of the "proud papa" as a new pop, lugging around a box of cigars, but this month V. Barker is a member of that group and there's no new arrival at his house. The reason for his pride? His three children will be on their way to Hollywood about the middle of August at the invitation of Columbia pictures.

The three youngsters, along with their father, have recently returned from New York after two years of modeling and appearing in Broadway shows. Betty, 10, was the young lady you saw leading the baby parade at the picnic. Charles, 13, and Marie, 11, are the oldest.

Betty appeared in "Showboat" and was also a model for the famous Canover agency. Her picture will appear on two magazine covers this fall—"Beauty Culture" and "Modern Beauty Shops."

Marie recently had the lead in a movie which was produced by Young America, Inc. and appears in the audience scenes of the new movie, "Carnegie Hall."

Charles hopes to get into pictures with Gene Autry whom he met in New York. Autry is very interested in boys his age, Charles said.

While the children were in New York their schooling was continued through attendance at the Children's Professional school. The city school board of New York sees that every child leads a normal life, even though he may appear on the stage every night. They do not star-gazing too much to get into the future a few years hence see the names of one or perhaps all three of the Barker children appearing in Hollywood productions. They've certainly made a good start in the right direction.

Red Shutters "Set Off" Allison Pre-Fab

The basic features of most of the pre-fabs here are the same, but almost every couple has made changes. They have also papered their rooms, adding still more to the neatness and attractiveness of their nice pre-fab.

DeBrabants Have Reason To Be Proud Of Home

That sparkle in the eyes of Douglas DeBrabant, Jr., is there for a reason—for who wouldn't be proud of the nice pre-fab which his parents have provided for him in North Brevard. Doug, Jr.'s arrival five months ago almost coincided with the arrival of his home and since that time both arrivals have been keeping his parents busy but it's the kind of work that carries with it much satisfaction and enjoyment. Doug, Jr.'s Dad is employed in Maintenance.
