

TAKE A MULE ON COON HUNT, THESE EXPERTS ADVISE

Humorous Story Of Recent Expedition Brought To Light By One Of Group

On Friday afternoon, October 17, five of us decided to go on a coon hunt. In the group were Dick Lance, Maintenance; Clayton Gardner and Elmer Gevedon of the Boiler room; Sam Kent of Power; and Lona Jones from the Carbonate plant.

We left Turkey Creek church about 8 p. m. The dog struck a track that carried it around the mountain and soon got out of hearing. Elmer had about a half bushel of apples along and said he was getting tired of carrying them and stopped at a big log to eat some of them. Gardner, who complained of being cold, put on his raincoat and buckled his lantern to his back.

Along came Morrison Bainter and a couple of other fellows with a nice big coon. We all admired this fine catch and wondered if we could do as well.

Water 40 Miles Away

The dog finally came back and had been hurt, so we decided to start for home. We ended up at Poplar Lick on Mills river. We backtracked back to the top of the mountain. Gardner had brought a big bag of sandwiches and we stopped to eat. Elmer took a peanut butter sandwich and after a bite or two, declared he was choking to death—and not a drop of water in 40 miles!

Gardner and Lance were supposed to know the country so they debated which direction to take now. Lance finally picking the way. We took off down the mountain. Elmer told Lance that if this was the wrong way, he was going to have to carry him back up the mountain. Gardner's legs began to weaken. "I'd give the good sum of $100 for a mule," he whined.

Soon we hit a little creek and Lance said he knew this was the headwaters of Turkey creek. We followed the creek, landing at Mills river again!

Kent Knew For Sure

Kent says let's go down the river and come out at Turkey Pen. "I know every inch of the river for I've fished every inch of it," he reassured us. We waded the river, going downstream to Poplar Lick and we decided to back-track again.

Jones asked Elmer where his hat was. "I got tired of the limbs knocking it off and threw it away," he answered. By this time, Elmer was wearing gloves and had a walking stick as big as his leg. We got back to the top of the mountain at daylight. We looked at the sun and listened for the sound of Ecusta. We finally got our direction and got out at 9 a. m.

If anybody has a good mule, Gardner says he's willing to trade his car in on one!

—Written by one of the group.

It is interesting to note that when God made man He didn't arrange any of the joints of his bones so he could pat himself on the back.—Beacon.

You have acquired much wisdom when you have learned how to enjoy your life without having to spend money for your fun.—Pagabond.

Telephone Changes

Please note the following new numbers and correct all Ecusta directories:

Alexander, Jack	Brevard 612-W	248
Best, F. S.		342
Cooper, G. J.	AUTOCALL	269
Davenport, Sadye		215
Harden, Ruth		215
Johnson, Virginia	Asheville 7948-W
Merrell, Fritz		368
Poole, Dot	Brevard 64	324
Refrigeration Crew	AUTOCALL
Russell, Charles L.	Brevard 703-W	315
Schmidt, Howard	Brevard 338	327
Townsend, Nat	AUTOCALL
Tucker, Gus		241
York, Earl		335

All resident and plant extension changes should be promptly reported to the Ecusta operator.

Wins Prize At Fair

Anne Garren, 12 year old daughter of Marvin and Hassie Garren of Finishing, and a member of the Brevard Elementary 4-II club, won a red ribbon and a cash prize of $10 for her entry in the Window Treatment exhibit at the State Fair at Raleigh October 15-18.

Anne's Window Treatment was chosen for exhibit by Miss Mary Margaret Robinson, county home demonstration agent, on the basis of accomplishment on her Room Improvement project which has been carried over a period of two years.

The secret of success in conversation is to be able to disagree without being disagreeable.—Universe.

Several Ecustans' Names Drawn For Pisgah Deer Hunts

Several people connected with our companies were among the lucky names to be drawn for the deer hunts which will be staged in the Pisgah National Forest November 10-22. Because of the large number of persons desiring to participate in the hunts, it was necessary to draw the names at the Brevard chamber of commerce.

The names of Ecustans drawn were: Lewis Stepp, Frederick L. McCall, Tom Hargis, Jr., Charles R. Allison, Mrs. Sid Barnett, Jr., John T. Hollis, Jr., Wayne E. Conn, H. W. Sigmon, B. B. Meixell, Mrs. R. F. Bennett and Walter T. Glazener.

STUDENTS TOUR PLANT

Twenty-five chemistry students from Warren Wilson junior college at Swannanoa, accompanied by Miss Ethel Klemm, chemistry teacher at the college, toured the plant Wednesday morning, October 29.

Words, like clothes, should be washed clean before they are hung out to dry.—Marcelene Cox.

If you ever get to thinking that you are indispensable, just remember what happened to the horse when the tractor came along.—Glenn E. Bunnell.

Certain men get the idea that they are breezy when they are merely windy.—Fred Waring

October Visitors

October was a busy month for visitors to our plant. Many states of the union and two foreign countries were represented in those who went through our gates—most of them for the first time.

Above are five of the visitors. In the top photograph are Mr. G. W. Macon, president of the Universal Leaf Tobacco Co., of China Federal, Inc., who accompanied Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Ting and Mr. S. H. Hsu of China. Mr. Ting is owner of the China Foh Sing Tobacco Company. They visited the plant October 1.

The following day, we had in our midst, Mr. George V. Denny, moderator of the famous radio program, Town Hall. Mr. Denny's mother lives in Asheville, and although he is a frequent visitor to Western North Carolina to see his mother, this is the first time he had visited Ecusta.

