

FIRST CELLOPHANE

The initial shake-down run of the first cellophane casting machine got under way on June 11.

Although actual commercial production by the eight casting machines is not expected to get under way until this fall, individual machines will be broken in as soon as each machine and its associated equipment is installed and in operating condition. Above: Charles Clark and J. C. Moffitt at one of the slitting machines. Below: Hershel Galloway watching the first run of cellophane on the casting machine.

