In welcoming the group to Ecusta, Mr. L. F. Dixon who is General Manager of Ecusta Paper Division, paid tribute to the work that was being done throughout the State by the Society, and pledged his support in their program for furthering the crusade against accidents. The response was made by Tarvia Jones, who in behalf of the Society, expressed deep appreciation to Mr. Dixon for the wonderful hospitality being extended the group. Included at the luncheon as guests, were the members of the General Safety Committee of the Paper Division, who were recognized by H. E. Newbury for the important part that each of them were taking in the local accident prevention program.

At the business session, Tarvia Jones spoke to the group about the numerous needless traffic fatalities occurring throughout the State, and stressed the fact that the users of motor vehicles should concentrate more on "defensive driving". The members of the Society pledged their support in carrying on a well balanced program for the prevention of accidents not only in industry, but at home, in the community and on the highways.
