CLEANLINESS CLIPS

WASHING ONLY SAFE WAY TO CLEAN YOUR ELECTRIC BLANKET

Electric blankets are made with wiring wrapped in water-proof plastic coating. Because cleaning fluids can injure the insulation, it's important to wash electric blankets. Squeeze the blanket for three minutes in lukewarm soapsuds. Rinse and press out water with hands. Hang over two parallel lines to dry, stretching edges straight. Never fold an electric blanket nor put it through a wringer or tumbler-type drier.

Don't break your feet when breaking in a new pair of shoes. To cure stiff shoe heels, rub dry soap into the lining and "work" the back of each heel with your hands until it limbers up.

Halloween and soap go together. When the children come around to scrawl on your windows, hand them the soap and say: "Go ahead!" Next day, take a wet cloth or sponge and wash the windows with the soapsuds. The children will have a wonderful Halloween and you'll have sparkling windows.

Closet space-saver: a hanger with washable plastic quilted pockets on both sides for holding shoes, handbags, slippers.

Curio collectors who pick up old wooden statuettes or other odd items of wood should know that soap and water scrubbing is the best way to restore unpainted wood to a uniform color. Allow to dry slowly in a shady, airy place. This advice comes from an art dealer.

Rub dry soap under the foot of your sewing machine, to keep plastic material moving smoothly and easily during stitching.

Lintless dust cloths are made, not born. Soak the cloth in hot soapsuds with a few drops of turpentine for several hours. Wring out and let dry. These dustcloths will now hold dust and give furniture a brilliant polish. Repeat every two weeks.

Useful household equipment: an aluminum sleeve board padded on both sides for pressing blouses, ruffels, sleeves, and plackets. The covering comes off for easy laundering.

SAD SHORT STORY

"INJURY," said the workman.
"INATTENTION," said the supervisor.
"INFLAMMATION," said the doctor.
"INCURABLE," said the hospital.
"INCREDIBLE," said the mourners.
"INTERNEED," said the undertaker.
"IN PEACE," said the tombstone.

A Southern mother took her small daughter up North with her last winter. The child, having never seen snow before, aroused her mother early one morning, exclaimed: "Wake up, mother, there is grits everywhere outside!"
