PRINTING DEPARTMENT

By Julius Tinsley

We haven't had any recent vacationers in the Printing Department, but several of the fellows here have been squirrel hunting which brings to mind an incident experienced by Troy Drake and Lawrence Fisher. The boys deecided to go hunting one Monday morning. They saw several squirrels but weren't fast enough to get them before they got away. Lawrence did get one, but to make them remember the trip they killed a big black snake measuring six feet long. I don't know which one got the snake, but I don't believe they have been hunting anymore. Maybe they decided fall wasn't really here yet and they would wait until they were sure the snakes had gone in before they would try again.

Conward McClure and family are all settled in their new home on Hayes street and "Mac" says they like it fine.

We all enjoyed the World Series games a lot by having them over the speaker system and we say thanks to those who made it possible.

Howard Hutchins, Troy Drake and Ernest Smith reported a very enjoyable time at a chicken supper given by Walter Straus for the Champagne Baseball team at Camp Straus on October 6th.

Speaking of entertainment, Lawrence and Carolyn Fisher are enjoying wonderful reception with their new television set. Lawrence says the Series games came in wonderfully well.

John McCall's brother, Charles, was up from Fayetteville, N. C., recently and they went hunting. A very good time reported but not much game.

The ending of an ideal summer season is now to be witnessed by nature's change to "Autumn Gold" throughout our countryside." May we ever be thankful for all its beauties which are given to us to enjoy and to remember.

That is the only hunting story we have so far, but Gerald Fowler has a fishing tale to top all fishing tales. He says he used a rod and fish line to get a snake out of his well.

Red Chapman must have spent his vacation eating strawberries. I see where his daughter, Freda Jean was first place winner in a strawberry project for 4-H club members in the Quebec community.

We all hope Al and Mrs. Ream will enjoy their new home. It is just about ready to move into.

Your reporter and family spent an enjoyable weekend in Atlanta visiting Dr. and Mrs. Tom Nation.

There is a man down the road who says he knows it is too late to ask for the return of his coon, but he sure would appreciate getting back the chain that held it.
