

Classroom instruction is every bit as important as the many other phases of student nurse training. Here Dot reviews with the other student nurses some of the various bones which make up the human body. During the first three months of training, almost all of a student nurse's time is taken up with classes.

Experience in Operating Room procedure is another phase of the student nurse's training. Dot (on right) holds a retractor for Dr. Jim Cherry as he performs a difficult hip-pinning operation.

When Dot's Uncle, David Price, was injured in an auto accident he was taken to Mission Hospital for treatment. Dot was assigned as his nurse. David's wife is employed in the Finishing Department (Paper).