Students Attend U. N. Meet

BULLDOGS FINISH FOOTBALL SEASON WITH SIX VICTORIES

After an absence of ten years, football returned to Asheville-Biltmore this year. On November 22, the Bulldogs put the lid on the '47 season. The results may be found in the record book but the whole story is one that shows the real spirit of a football team.

When the call went out in the middle of September for players, some 35 men put in an appearance. None of the men knew the coaches nor their style, and the coaches knew even less of these athletes. These men wanted to play the game, the coaches wanted to have a winning squad and after three weeks of working out the stiff joints, the Bulldogs were ready to take on the opposition.

This came in the opening game with the Gardner-Webb team. After a hard fought game Asheville-Bilt. emerged the victors by the score of 13-0.

The Bulldogs had started and there was no stopping them until they had run their string to five wins in a row. On the 27th of September, Brevard was the victim, the score 12-6. Next came the Lees-McRae eleven who fell by the score of 13-6.

THE FOURTH STRAIGHT win came at the expense of the Mars Hill Mountain Lions, 12-0. Victory number five was the soft spot for the Bulldogs. In this game the Blue Ridge School for Boys went down by the score of 37-0. Then the first real road game proved too much for the boys and dog-tired they were held to a scoreless draw by Presbyterian Junior College. On October 30 in a home game, the Bulldogs returned to the winning column, making it their sixth win of the year. The Catawba B team fell by score of 19-13.

By this time the A-B squad had

Norman Bie President Of Spanish Club

On the night of November 18, the Spanish club met at the home of Miss Pat Laughter, 39 Tampa Avenue. The purpose of the meeting was to elect officers and make plans for future meetings of the club.

Officers elected were: president, Norman Bie; vice-president, Jack Wiggins; secretary, Rod Miller; treasurer, Billie Cobb; publicity manager, Paul Raione. Bart Gregorisch was unanimously chosen club critic.

The name of the club is "Los Sabios," or "The Wise Ones." "Nothing ventured, nothing gained," or in Spanish, the motto is "Quien no se aventura no pasa el mar." Red, white, and blue, the club colors, are those of the Republic of Cuba, and were chosen in honor of

Representatives Of N. C. Schools Stage Session

Editors Note—The following story, written by Joe Morris, News Editor of The Crier, gives his impression of the conference at Statesville. Many of the matters treated by students at the meeting are of world-wide importance.

By Joe Morris

On November 15, the International Relations Club of Asheville-Biltmore received letters from Hugh Mitchell, President of Lions International and Lincoln S. H. Kan, State Director of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations, inviting delegates from the college to attend a conference on the United Nations, at Statesville, N. C.

To represent the club, Joe Morris and Norman Bie were delegated to attend, and for the "Crier" Herb Wallace and Nickie Bonarrigo were chosen.

Registration for the conference took place in the lobby of the Vance Hotel, November 20. Later a banquet was held for the delegates attending the conference, during which an address was given by Dr. Oscar Ivanissevich, ambassador from Argentina to the United States.

DOCTOR OSCAR IVANISSEVICH, a man of brilliant mind and of a magnetic personality, applied a moral principle: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you," as a practical application for the improvement of relations between nations. As examples of nations now existing in social harmony, Ambassador Ivanissevich cited Switzerland, Denmark, Sweden, Norway, Ireland, and New Zealand.

The ambassador from Argentina stated beyond doubt, the United States represents the best human experiment of all times, and that there has been developed in the United States the highest standard of social life ever known.

Doctor Ivanissevich added: "This country (United States) has attained its present stage of development under the sign of toil and liberty, and from the political standpoint its institutions are, in very truth, the most complete expression of democracy."

DOCTOR IVANISSEVICH described the present position of Argentina as the "Third Position," saying:

"In this manner we shall perfect, the copitalistic economy which has furnished the most outstanding manifestations of progress,
