Sponsors Are Selected For Homecoming

Mrs. Randall Leslie and the Misses Mary Margaret McMeans, Betty Jean Morris, and Lucille Thrash were selected as sponsors to represent the football team and band, when Asheville-Biltmore College held its homecoming at Memorial Stadium on Thursday night, October 29.

The four young ladies were featured in a colorful parade during the afternoon thru the downtown section of Asheville, including students, members of the faculty, and PUCK, the school's new mascot. Automobiles participating in the parade were gaily decorated in the school colors. Later, the sponsors, very prettily attired and wearing beautiful white mum corsages, were honored by having reserved seats alongside the "Bulldog" benches.

During the half-time exercises, the sponsors were driven onto the field with their escorts, where they were introduced by the president of the student body, Johnny Tipton. After being introduced, first to Mars Hill fans and then on the home side, they were given a rousing cheer by the cheerleaders and students.

The Alumni of Asheville-Biltmore were special guests and were seated in reserved seats marked off in the favorite red and blue. Members of the Classical Co-Eds served as ushers. The day was one that will be long remembered as a gala affair by all concerned.

Dinner Held For Alumni

The alumni of Asheville-Biltmore were guests of the faculty and college board members at a dinner Thursday night in the Candlelight room of the Biltmore Plaza. Captain Robert Lee Smith, chairman of the board, delivered the opening address, and introduced the board members. John Easley, president of the Alumni Association, presented the alumni to the group. Roy Taylor and Mayor Morgan spoke briefly to the gathering. Dr. Glenn L. Bushey, president of the college, introduced the faculty members.

"ENGLISH CLASSIC PUCK"

"Puck" Joins A-BC

If you were walking around between classes on the date of October 27 and suddenly found yourself shoved against the wall or your feet knocked out from under you, you must have thought it was Durner keeping in shape for the Mars Hill game. Really, it was the newest member of our student body - "PUCK" - just getting his exercise.

"Puck" is now a full fledged member due to contributions amounting to $100 from the students and friends of the college.

He is an English Bull, four years old, and weighs 60 pounds. One look at him and you are convinced that he is just the mascot we need for our athletic teams, big and aggressive looking.

"Puck" was born September 7, 1944, and comes to us from Mr. D. E. Borkley, Jr. of Sylva, N. C. Mr. Borkley is a well known breeder of bulldogs in this area.

"English Classic Puck" (that's his registered name) is one of the best dogs in the South today. He has won several dog shows in Asheville.

"Puck" plans to make his home here at Asheville-Biltmore for the rest of his life, and to supply us with an able descendant to carry on when he is gone. He says he's particularly anxious to move "up on the hill" so he can have more room to roam around. After all,

"Puck" is one of the aristocracy in the dog world so it's fitting that he have such surroundings.

In reference to his pedigree "Puck's" sire was "Kapras Joy Bee Bee" and his dam was "English Classic Luch Nannette." Both are dogs of excellent breeding with many champions in their ancestry.

Don't let all those high sounding names fool you, though. "Puck" is a regular fellow. He speaks to everybody and has never met a stranger.

Wherever you see Asheville-Biltmore students from now on, there you will see "Puck" or one of his descendants. He is a great symbol for a great-and soon will be greater-college.
