If things keep up the fellow who jumps into the air to dodge an automobile may bump his head on an airplane.

Jane Goode: I want a nice picture for a wedding present.

Kat Cassels: Here, this is very suitable: "The Approaching Storm."

Pres. Billups: I get a good deal of consolation out of my twins.

Prof. Johnson: How come?

Pres. Billups: Because they ain't triplets.

A. B. Bruton: At last I have written something for the Love Story Magazine that has been accepted.

J. L. Michael: What is it?
Bruton: A check for a year's subscription.

Sam Goode: Carpenter you're on the lady's garment.

Joe Griggs: No, that's a coat.

Seabolt: Aren't you wild about bathing beauties?

Wendell Faw: I don't know, I never bathed one.

A joke for the card players:
"Ah wins."
"What you got?"
"Three aces."
"No you don't. Ah wins."
"What you got?"
"Two knives an' a razor."
"You sho does. How come you is so lucky?"

"Brethren and sistern when de last day arrives there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."
"Oh Lawd Gawd!"
"Sister Mandy, what ails you?"
"I ain't got no teeth."
"Teeth will be furnished," added the parson.

Prof. Allen: What makes your daughter so talkative?
Mrs. Barnhardt: I think she was vaccinated with a phonograph needle.

Pres. Billups: How do you keep your children in at night?
Prof. Pons: I have in inclosed car.

Fred Smith: I say, is that bull safe?
Farmer Friend: Well, he's very much safer than you are right now.

Willis Bumgarner: How old is your little boy?
Coach Weaver: Just a year old.
Bumgarner: Huh, I've got a dog just a year old, and he can walk twice as well as your son.
Coach Weaver: Well, he ought to. He has twice as many legs.

Mrs. Dew: Mr. Griggs, there was three apples in the ice box, and now there is only one. How did that happen?
Joe Griggs: Well, Mrs. Dew, it was so dark in there I didn't see the other.

Mrs. Billups: I want to buy some lard.
Cap Estes: Pail?
Mrs. Billups: I didn't know it came in two shades.

Laurie Smith: And why do you call me Pilgrim?
Kate Shrum: Well, every time you call you make a little progress.

HUNT, RETIRING EDITOR

(Continued from first page) work. There is no doubt that he is one of the most valuable and dependable fellows among the student body. Lazy is a word not found in his vocabulary. In addition to his studies, he has been secretary to President Billups. Never shirking these responsibilities, he has won a number of honors and had others bestowed upon him. He has been editor of The Rectangle; out of the four quarters of the school year, he has held an office in the Newtonian Literary Society three quarters; being president during the last quarter, which is the most difficult period of the year. He has been vice-president of the Freshmen College class, and secretary of Professor Lee Weaver's Sunday School Class. Not the least among the honors Hunt has won is the Newtonian Orator's Medal. This is perhaps the most coveted honor sought in the society, and in winning first place by unanimous vote, Hunt has distinguished himself. He is also one of the three men who won out in the preliminary declamation contest, and will be one of the commencement speakers in the annual declamation contest. To Hunt also goes the honor of naming and designing the present masthead of The Rectangle.

Though Hunt is just rounding out his first year at Rutherford, he has won signal honors and has endeared himself to the student body and faculty, and we all hope he will return next year.

MERRYMAKERS BROADCAST

CAST FROM GASTONIA
Sunday afternoon, May 19, the Rutherford College Merry-makers broadcast an interesting program from WRBU, Gastonia, and many compliments were received from those who tuned in. Throughout Gastonia the program was well received and enjoyed by all those who heard it. This was the second time that the Merry-makers had the privilege to broadcast from this station. Practically the same was broadcast from WBT, Charlotte, a few months ago, and was given at several schools. The Merry-makers have been a great agent in popularizing this school and much praise is due Mrs. Crawford and these workers for their excellent work and efforts to provide some beneficial entertainment.
