

Harmon Elected Captain

C. W. Harmon was elected captain of the 1935 Tornado squad by an almost unanimous vote of the eighteen men receiving letters during the past season.

The election was the main event of a formal dinner that was held in honor of the squad on Thanksgiving evening just after the final game with Mars Hill.

Harmon was one of the most consistent and energetic men on the Brevard squad. He played practically all of every game at tackle, and through his fine work he received a berth on the second all-state junior college team. While in high school he received a medal for being the best all-round athlete in the school. He made a letter in football here last fall.

Three Brevard Boys Make All-State Football Team

Bud Gaston, Walter Clayton, and Leroy Lail were named on the all-state junior college football team in a poll taken by the Charlotte Observer with nine of the ten conference coaches submitting a team.

Gaston received the second highest number of votes for the position he won at end. Bud is a sophomore and was the powerhouse of the Tornado team. Walter Clayton, Brevard's fastest and best-running back won the berth by his superior ball carrying. Leroy Lail was undoubtedly one of the most consistent linemen in the conference, and well deserves the position he won at guard.

C. W. Harmon, captain of the team was named on the second team at at tackle position. Edward Clayton and David Ashworth received honorable mention. Oak Ridge was the only team to place more players than Brevard.

A Review of the Season in Football

With eight victories, one tie, and one lost the Brevard Tornado football squad packed away their football togs, after their final game on Thanksgiving, to rest until next fall.

These Tornado men answered an early call by coming to school to begin practice on September 16, just one week before the regular session opened. During their first week they had the hardest and best workouts of the entire season. The boys learned each other, as well as a lot of football.

The playing season opened September 28, with the boys playing Biltmore Junior College at Asheville. At that time the team was still unorganized and the game ended in a scoreless tie. On the following Saturday the team began a winning streak that they maintained until their final game on Thanksgiving, when they were beaten by the powerful Mars Hill team.

Many of the boys who were in uniform for Brevard on Thanksgiving will never be in a football uniform again. A few, however, will continue their career here and others elsewhere.

Throughout the season the team had superior spirit. They loved football and highly respected Coach James. There were a few injuries, as may be expected; but every boy ended the season a stronger man than he began it.

As is customary, the outstanding players of the season were awarded letters, these being given for the time played and for the individual's spirit and willingness. Those receiving letters are Bud Gaston, William Edwards, Bill Davis, Edward Clayton, Walter Clayton, Ellis Frady, Leroy Lail, C. W. Harmon, Ernest Pruett, Clarence Henry, Everett Huggins, Garth Thompson, Charles Grey, Bill Furgeson, John Odom, Philip Brooks, David Ashworth, and Dan Williams, manager. These were announced at the formal dinner held in honor of the team Thanksgiving evening.

Charles Deal had an irresistible way of excusing himself from Miss Smith's English assignments.

Give Elmo some cheese; he thinks he is anyhow!

Gordon was the only boy who could quote poetry all night to the satisfaction of his roommates. He was also the only one who was allowed to do this to the dissatisfaction of those above him. There were only two — Elmo and Nick.

"Red" Duncan unnecessarily drank a great amount of coffee at one of the cafes up town.

Earl was too busy to eat; but he did. The same could be said about his tennis playing.

When the telephone rang the one nearest answered, while all the others called him.

Our rain was Mr. Dendy's sunshine.

Howard was jack of all trades and master of some. Out of the same deck of which he was Jack his roommate was the duce — Il Duce, however.

Any time George Prentice wanted to go hunting the boys gladly called for Dusty.

Wilson and Joe, representatives of the business and social activities of Gastonia, enjoyed working in the kitchen, with the privilege of eating, however.

Cameron Flake continually waked the boys too early by the huffing and puffing which resulted from his strenuous morning exercises.

John Carson was halted between two opinions — should he ride a motorcycle or play a fiddle?

It seemed that Burton enjoyed being alone, especially when his girl friend was with him.

The boys on the sleeping porch did not substitute the verb for the adjective which characterized the porch.

Robert Stevenson did some exceptionally good scholastic work in spite of the fact that he had to look after the hens' nests for his roommate.

Maugans, we did learn to pronounce your name after seeing you play tennis.

Willis Turner was from the Capital, but he wasn't incessantly asking for votes to be sent back home.

Whether it was in his hair or not, Jessups had strength.

Vernon didn't Tuck-'er away, neither did he put 'er in a pumpkin shell.

We heard the voice of one, Woodrow Griffin, calling to the multitude to play leap-frog; with one accord we consented.

Delphians Win Over Clios

The 1935 football season came to a close in Brevard last Thursday when the Delphain Literary Society team defeated the Cliosophic team in a very interesting and well played game, by the score of 13 to 0.

The game opened with the Clios' kicking to their opponents; the Delphians took the ball on their 40 yard line on the play; and, after a consistent drive, they put over their first touchdown early in the first quarter, when Buchanan carried the ball on an off-guard play from the Clio 2 yard line.

The Delphians continued their attack and scored again in the opening minutes of the second quarter; Deal was in the scoring on the play as he carried the ball off-tackle for the needed three yards to toll. The attempt for the point failed.

Throughout the entire second half neither team threatened their opponents' goal. The Clios, however, began a driving attack that netted fifty yards near the end of the game.
