

Tell-Tales

Patter:

Avett seems to get what she desires when it comes to long notes.

Miss Smith says no more dating on the basement steps.

Marcho likes rides at night, even if two teachers are along. Thanks go to Mr. Colvard.

There was a Brevard reunion in Asheville Saturday night. Ask Harry, Esther, or "Rhythm."

Shorty's visit to the hospital proved unsatisfactory. Result—campus, room and social restrictions.

Jack Armstrong believes in the old saying that the early bird gets the girl. He dated the new girl, Dora, last week-end. A welcome to her!

Since Lloyd developed flu, Bundy is taking a correspondence course in "How to Write Sweet Notes."

Wonder who will win in this new triangle—Marshall, Sara Lou, and Woody. Woody seems to like assistant deans and hostesses at table twelve. It is a remarkable coincidence!

Who said: "Wonder if we'll be eating together eight years from now?" Clue—The first name is Mary.

Pat says that it is rather nice to have Red around. She missed him.

"Love and a dozen oranges"—Annie Ruth and Wearyworld.

Lail is the object of the affections of more than one of these girls.

Who refused to be a sponsor because she had superlative?

Jack Noblitt rates too. Why hasn't he given any West Hall girls a break? Perhaps it's because he likes a "Davenport" at Virginia Lodge.

Creasman came back from Tryon agreeing that week-ends at home are grand.

Leighton prefers West Hall girls—he likes variety.

What sophomore girl has a crush on the editor of this paper?

Eunice received a box of candy which she couldn't eat, but which was certainly appreciated.

Red Duncan says he doesn't want his mind cluttered up with women, because he has to preach. But we wonder; he dated all week-end.

Who is this Price has an interest in? A boy who used to brighten her day by sitting beside her in chapel. Now Price says that this business of having to sit at a definite place isn't fun at all.

Five Questions

How many can you answer?

This and that: If there is anybody who doesn't have enough snow by this time, it certainly requires a lot to satisfy him. I never come up from the kitchen without finding someone sitting at the telephone in West Hall. Wasn't the concert in chapel delightful? The audience was most appreciative. I don't mean to be saying anything against Horace or anybody in particular, but don't you think it is just a bit rude to have the bell ring while some one is speaking in chapel? Wonder what a person would have thought if he had happened to look in at one of Mrs. Coltrane's classes the first of the week? No, the students weren't getting in practice for Halloween by making funny faces; they were merely trying to learn to pronounce some words correctly. Three cheers for the "every-Saturday-night-get-together" idea.

Today's popular expression: "Be my valentine."
