Brevard Graduates In Other Schools

According to the records of the registrar about two-fifth's of the graduates of Brevard College during its last three quarters will enter other colleges or universities about the same time Brevard begins her third year of operation. Most of this group had no difficulty in having their transfer made, but those with low grades were unable to gain full credit in some of the schools.

Edith Beard, Vivian Moore, Rena Morgan, Emma Martin, Madeline Farthing, Bessie Mae McFadden, Wylma Ferguson, and Ethelene Goodnight are enrolling at the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina in Greensboro.

Dan Williams and Millard Whiteside were admitted to the Naval Academy in Annapolis last June. Dan graduated in the March class with high scholastic record. Millard was a graduate of the June class.

Marvine Schrever of Flecter and C. W. Harmon of Winnsboro, S. C. are enrolled in Wofford College in South Carolina. Harmon was captain of the football team last year; also he served as assistant dean in Taylor Hall.

Helen Avett, Alice Scott, and Elma Freeman are joining other Brevard graduates of other years at Greensboro College in Greensboro.

Bill Davis, who was editor of the CLARION last year, is now enrolled at Davidson where he was admitted with full credit for all the work that he did at Brevard. (See page four).

Robert Stevenson, Lloyd Parks, Taylar Bird, Robert Rhinehardt, and Catherine Coffey will continue their studies at the University of North Carolina this fall.

Gordon Barbour will continue his studies at Wake Forest College. Gordon completed his work at Brevard College at the end of the summer quarter.

Richard Queen, James Deavor. Queen Justice, Jane Rae Lackey, and others will be among the students at Western Carolina Teacher's Ethel Kerr will leave for Scarrett Sept. 21. Elaine Call is to enroll at East Carolina Teacher's College.

ENROLLMENT

400 Students Expected For pied by Wednesday night. Sixteen Third Year of Operation

When the mass of students who are now registering gather for the first assemble period Wednesday morning, there very probably will be the largest number of students ever to begin a quarter's work at Brevard College.

Students are here from many states and from all sections of North Carolina to begin the duties, studies, and joys of another year.

According to the register of students who havs forwarded room reservation by the middle of last week Brevard will have its most success ful year since its opening in 1934. Other applications and room reservation fees have come since the official check last week. Too, there are several here who did not forward information as to their enrollment.

Day students who attend classes but do not room on the campus are expected to outnumber those of any former year. Approximately twenty Brevard boys and girls have been on the register for sometime.

Practically every room in Taylor Hall which accomodates 141 boys has been reserved and will be occu-

Summer School

More than one hundred students were enrolled for the second summer session at Brevard, which began June 15 and closed Saturday, August 29.

The entire summer period was divided into three sections, with the first being the regular first half of the summer quarter. The second arrangement was for freshmen only, and it began July 6, with an enrollment of twelve students. The third section was the last half of the regular summer quarter.

Approximately fifteen courses in college work were offered while there were about eight courses of-fered to high school students. The high school department is only in operation during the summer quarter; and about twenty students were enrolled in the high school department throughout the summer.

In order to have an adequate program outside the class room, the students and faculty were placed in two different groups with both having equal membership. These two groups were given Indian names, i. e. Chickasaw and Yemasee. Both clubs elected a leader for the period, and teams of various kinds were organized for competi-additional rooms have been built in the basement, thus making room for the large group of boys who are expected.

By the middle of the summer every room in West Hall had been asked for, and it has been necessato renovate and remodel Mr. Coltrane's former house into a residence for girls. Virginia Lodge is again to be used as a girl's dormi-

By the time registration closes sometime this week there will be approximately four hundred students here. The larger number of this group will be composed of about two hundred and fifty boys, while the minority will be the feminine organization of about one hundred and fifty.

In the classification of classes the freshman class will outnumber the the sophomore class by about fifty or seventy-five. However, practically all of last year's freshmen are returning to form this year's sophomore class.

Mr. Coltrane states that he is happy to know that the registration is high and that he contemplates having the largest group of students ever to enter Brevard.

tive sport. Each group entertained the other at a social, and there was "pow wow" shortly before the big school closed. This affair was in the form of a camp-fire program and social on the campus at Ross Hall

During the summer only the first and second floors of both Taylor Hall and West Hall were occupied by students. Classes were conducted only in the morning, with the exception of laboratory periods which came in the afternoon. The students met for assembly program every morning except Saturday.

Football Men Wanted
