

Mr. Cathey Speaks To I. R. C.

EX-PROFESSOR OF HISTORY

The International Relations Club had as its guest Tuesday night Mr. Cornelius Cathey, former history teacher at Brevard College and sponsor of the club. In his talk he explained how our idea of the world in general has been broadened, and how that now world affairs are our affairs too. He told of Andrew Carnegie, who came to America an immigrant and a poor homeless boy, and grew to be one of the biggest business men in the world. It is he who began the endowment fund for the I. R. C. The money provided by this fund is used to buy books, provide speakers, and supply means for radio broadcasts to further the international peace movement. The purpose of the organization, as he explained it, is to study problems presented in world affairs. Mr. Cathey's advice was "Be cool, think clearly, think fearlessly; and you will draw the right conclusions."

A short social hour followed this interesting talk.

Several Outstanding Programs Are Booked

Brevard College students will have the privilege of hearing three outstanding speakers or entertainers next week at assembly periods.

On Tuesday morning Rev. J. W. West, former pastor of Brevard Methodist Church and now a member of our board of trustees, will speak. Irene Holcombe, a graduate of Berea College, will give a musical program on Wednesday morning. President Hunter, of Western North Carolina Teachers' College, will speak to the students.

The CLARION, on behalf of the student body, extends to Miss Margaret Wright deep sympathy in the loss of her brother.

Freshmen Will Entertain Sophomores At Theatre Party March 3

Preparations are well under way for the Freshman-Sophomore Theatre Party which will be given Wednesday evening, March 3. Various committees have been selected and are functioning admirably.

Frank Ausbnad, Master of Ceremonies, has some ideas that are expected to develop into a real program. A dating committee is hoping to make suitable arrangements for every boy and girl - faculty members too, if they need assistance. Sue Bundy is chairman and is a very capable leader of this committee. Miss Killough has been asked to

Comedy Will Be Given Next Tuesday Night

Tuesday night, February 23, at eight o'clock the Dramatic Club will present a comedy entitled "The Imaginary Invalid."

This comedy is the story of a man who thinks that he is an invalid. His wife attempts to keep him in this state of mind so that she can get his money. A family marriage is arranged for his daughter with a doctor; for he desires to have a doctor in the family.

The play reaches a climax with these details in the air; but in the end - - well.

The characters in the play are Bernice Brantley, Marcella Pendley, Frank Craven, Leighton Presson, Jean Reighard, Martha Yelton, Jack Taggart, Jack Bagwell, Griffin Campbell, Russell Andrews, and Sam Little.

Miss Smith is directing the play, with the assistance of Doris Thorne, who appeared in the winter production of the Dramatic Club.

Delphians Have Debate

At the regular meeting of the Delphians last night four members debated the vastly important question: Resolved: "That it is better to court in a buggy than in a T-Model Ford."

be class adviser. Miss Craig is cooperating with the various committees.

Grace Moore in "When You Are In Love" is the screen attraction. Although definite arrangements have not been made, it is the hope of the Freshman Class to put on a variety show which will thrill the audience.

The party will not be formal, as some have suggested it should be, because of the inconvenience of conveyance to and from the theatre.

The Brevard College Press will be asked to do the printing of all materials.

Agriculturalists Meet Tonight For Banquet

Brevard College will be the scene tomorrow night of a banquet of outstanding agriculturalists and farmers in Transylvania and Henderson counties.

This banquet is the climax of a corn-growing contest sponsored in these two counties during the last six months. The banquet is to be in this county as a tribute to the county, since the winner of the contest, T. J. Wilson, is a resident of Transylvania.

The Scientific Farmers' Union of this College is sponsoring the banquet, and they will have the privilege of hearing the speeches which conclude the affair. President Coltrane will deliver a short address. Members of the faculty and the college choir and glee clubs will sing. Some of the class in home economics and boys of the Scientific Farmers' Union will wait on tables.

Col. J. W. Harrelson, Dean of State College, will appear on the program. All county agents of the eight T. V. A. districts will be here as guests. Several leading journalists of the state are to cover the affair.

We are all salesmen, every day of our lives. We are selling our ideas, our plans, our energies, our enthusiasm to those with whom we come in contact.

Clios and Euterpeans Win Basketball Game

Big brother and little sister societies, the Euterpeans and Clios, gallantly defeated their rival societies and opponents in the inter-society basket-ball games at the High School gymnasium last Thursday night in scores 10 to 8 and 17 to 11, respectively, before a large portion of the student body, who exuberantly boosted the society to which they belonged.

The "Muses," playing the initial game, engaged in the first basket-ball game that a Brevard girls' team has played. When all good and "punk" shots were over and the final toot came on the whistle, the Euterpeans proudly and wildly jumped into the air with shouts of victory. Elizabeth Price led the scoring for the winners, and Edith Stamey was the dominant player in action for the losers.

Although with very little practice to begin a game, both boys' teams played fast and exact ball. Frank Craven, a nimble and flashy Clio, was far ahead of any other man in the scoring roster. Everhardt carried scoring honors for the Delphians.

Leon Stubbs piloted the Clios, and Howard Stamey was mentor of the Delphians and Mnemosyneans. Mrs. Ranson coached the Euterpeans.

Flash--Flash

Erskine College telephoned Coach Arthur J. Ranson to-day and canceled the Erskine-Brevard game here to-night. Reasons were not disclosed.

"Uncle Remus" Featured

On Tuesday evening the Folklore Club enjoyed a program on Joel Chandler Harris. Charlie Lou Washington presented a biographical sketch of the author, and John James Powell and Jeanette Gable gave readings from the "Uncle Remus" stories.
