"Yellow Sheet" Of Taylor Hall Is Exposed

By Professor Fowlervich

Detective Onion W. Bandrew, former nursemaid and bodyguard for the late Oscar Zilch, stumbled upon a dirty news sheet in the wine cellar of Taylor Hall. For years a paper filled with insults and accusations has caused much consternation in this vicinity.

Details of the raid could not be gotten from the snooper-sleuth, as he was in somewhat feeble-minded condition after the terrific ordeal. He just stood against the wall and muttered over and over, "I unlocked the door and got 'em, Chief."

When asked to what he attributed his success, he tearfully cried out, "My crepe-soled shoes and black slouch hat." [Editor's note - We think it is his keen key-hole insight.]

By Iona Ford

In a will made public yesterday, March 30, Brevard College was named principal beneficiary in the will of the late Mr. Horseface Klotz, retired millionaire blacksmith of Detroit, Michigan.

Mr. Klotz, who before his death was a noted philanthropist, has before given large sums of money to colleges and other asylums.

Probably the best known of Mr. Klotz' philanthropic acts was the donation of six carloads of cough-drops to be sent to Alpine yodelers in Switzerland.

Mr. Klotz is survived by his widow, nine sons, a daughter, and three Scotty dogs.

The professors have exhibited their tonsorial excellence upon such notables as Gene Wilson, Jack Erwin, Yours Truly, and others.

Said Professor Everhardski, when asked how his patients liked their trims, "They laughed
