

Joyce Brand Wed To Lewis Compton Today

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 8—The marriage of Miss Dorothy Joyce Brand, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Brand, to Lewis Vernon Compton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Compton, Brevard, was solemnized today in the Central Baptist church chapel at Miami, Florida. Dr. C. Roy Angell, pastor of Central Baptist church, performed the double ring ceremony.

The Reverend George Brinkmann Ehlhardt, past president of Brevard college, was to perform the double-ring ceremony, but he was unable to make the trip due to aftermath of an automobile accident.

Attired in a traditional white satin wedding gown trimmed in lace and seed pearl, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She carried a white orchid bouquet surrounded by lily-of-the-valley. Matron of honor, Mrs. James McBurney, who is a cousin of the bride, wore a taffeta gown of flamingo pink. Bridesmaid, Miss Patsy Pickle, and bridesmatron, Mrs. William Bolick, as well as junior bridesmaid, Lorinda Brand, wore dresses of shell pink taffeta. The attendants carried pendant bouquets of light pink carnations.

Mr. Charles W. Galloway was best man for Mr. Compton. Ushers included Messrs. Harvey A. Pickle, William Bolick, and Milton McClure.

Nuptial music was provided by Walton McClure, who sang "Because," "I Love Thee, Dear," and Chosen for Who's Who this issue are the presidents of the four literary societies on campus: Martha Washam, Euterpean; Peggy Laughlin, Mnemosynean; Larry Poteat, Delphian; and Jack Holder, Cliosophic.

Heads Of Literary Societies Have Many Interests, Different Hobbies

Peggy Laughlin, a sophomore from Marion, began her college days in a very upsetting way—on her first day as a college freshman, she slipped and fell on the library steps. "It was one of the most embarrassing moments of my life," this smiling lass of Scotch-Irish descent declared.

Peggy did not let this embarrassing accident faze her, however. She attributes this self-possession to her sense of humor, which she believes is her most valuable trait. Other valuable personality traits that she possesses are her lack of stage fright and her sunny disposition upon arising. She cannot account for the fact that she feels fine when she awakens, but much amateur experience in dramatics is probably the reason that she feels no stage fright. This experience makes her a valuable member of the college dramatics club.

Peggy's election as president of the Mnemosynean society was quite appropriate, since she likes to read and is well acquainted with literature. She likes historical novels, in particular those written by Inglis Fletcher. She also likes poetry, her favorite poet being Robert Frost.

a Coupe de Mariage, which belonged to the bride's great grandfather.

Following a wedding trip through Florida, the couple will be at home at 123 Lincoln Avenue, Haddonfield, New Jersey.

The bride attended schools in Miami and Brevard, graduating from Brevard high school and Brevard college, where she until recently served as associate librarian of the James Addison Jones library. During her school years at the college, Mrs. Compton was a member of the Euterpean society, Commercial club, Baptist Student Union, Betty Lamp club, and was feature editor of the CLARION.

Mr. Compton also graduated from Brevard high school, and is at present serving in the navy.

Peggy is majoring in primary education and plans to teach either first or second graders.

Martha Washam, a Charlotte girl born and bred, is very active in college clubs and societies. She is president of the Euterpean society, recreation chairman for the Christian Fellowship club, and photography editor for the 1952 Pertelote. She also devotes many spare time hours as a guard for the girls' basketball team.

Martha has several and varied hobbies, but most prominent are people and travel. She also enjoys modern literature. Her favorite modern author is Thornton Wilder. She also likes football, hiking, photography and sign collecting.

Martha's most prized possession is a stuffed dog named "Hoiman." If you are another George Washington and cannot tell a lie, you may be able to see "Hoibert," her imaginary mountain lion. Only truthful people can see "Hoibert," according to Martha. (No Taylor Hall girl has seen him yet!)

Martha plans to major in art or physical education at Richmond Polytechnic Institute or the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina after her graduation from Brevard. There, she plans to put to good use her motto, "Live for today, for tomorrow it will be gone."

Larry Poteat, who calls the town of Spencer "home," is president of the Delphian literary society at the college. Larry is a very active sophomore, judging by the offices he holds. He is president of the dramatics club, business staff member for the Clarion, secretary-treasurer for the Monogram club, and a guard on the basketball team.

Larry is fond of friendly people, of dancing, sports, and literature. His favorite author is Shakespeare, and his favorite Shakespearean drama is All's Well That Ends Well. He also likes The Robe by Lloyd C. Douglas.

Facing the problem of his future

McLarty Speaks On "The Common Man"

Dr. J. B. McLarty, pastor of the West Asheville Methodist church, spoke in chapel here November 30. Dr. McLarty, a graduate of Duke university, and past naval chaplain, is additionally a member of the board of trustees of the college, and secretary of the executive board. He spoke on "The Common Man."

"Nothing is common or ordinary when it is dedicated to the highest, when it is put to the test, or when it is at the hand of the Master," the Western North Carolina conference minister told the students. He explained this statement and developed the topic by illustrating the "common" peanut in the hand of Carver, the "common" apple in the hand of Newton.

education, Larry plans to attend either Lenoir-Rhyne or High Point college. He plans to major in social studies with the aim of becoming a teacher of history or economics-sociology.

Jack Holder is president of the Cliosophic society and a member of the Christian Fellowship club. Jack hails from Clemmons in the Tar Heel piedmont region. He says he is just a "poor li'l country boy" who likes traveling, math, football, television, popular music; and according to a friend, he likes peanuts almost as well as the squirrels do.

Jack is very fond of his 1949 Chevrolet automobile. He also has a blue "zoot" hat which is worn by everyone in West Hall. The hat is already famous, having been worn in college plays and at other affairs.

Jack was born with an itchy foot, for, he says, he "can't stand to stay in one place." Heeding the call of the open road, he would like to humor his pleasure in traveling by visiting Florida.

Although he is majoring in math, he has no plans for future education and he is also undecided about his future profession.
