The end of the 1957 baseball season marked the last appearance of ten members of the team. These boys are Jerry Haas, Bob Sims, Roger Pearson, Jim Ingle, Paul Blackburn, David Cudd, Jack Kimbro, Ross Wingo, Stanley Scruggs, and Tom Higgins.

Although the Tornados have a rather unimpressive record this year, they looked very good on several occasions.

Bob Sims led the team in hitting with an average of .380. He was followed by Eddie Dacus who batted .340 for the season. Ross Wingo batted .350 but he wasn't at bat as many times as the other two leaders. The team batting average for conference games was .258.

Pre-season predictions had Brevard ranked very highly in the conference but they couldn't seem to click consistently and wound up the season with a 4-10 record.
