

Rambling

With Audrey

By Audrey Honeycutt

Ah, what's that familiar pitter-patter I hear upon my window pane as I sneak out of bed after a weekend of beautiful, sunny weather? I knew it! The rainmaker is at it again and with the rain he's bringing icy sidewalks. Everyone was going "Slipping and sliding" toward Dunham Hall this morning. Oh well, we can't be so fortunate as to have beautiful weather and exams handed to us too. Exams . . . isn't that a musical sounding word! After three horrible ole weeks of sleep, good food, gifts, and good times, what could be more glorious than to return to burning the midnight oil and cramming for those dearly beloved exams? Seriously now, it's time all of us buckled down and hit the books for a spell. We'd hate to be missing a few of those smiling faces around here next semester. (Mine included.)

Say, "ole" Dan Dupid was really on the ball over those Christmas holidays. Has everyone noted the beautiful sparkling additions to certain girls' third finger, left hand? Congratulations are in order for Beverly Ussury and Charlie Adams; Thurley Steppe and Harold Mask; and Thelma Parker and Gary Wagner. May your futures be happy ones. The love bug seems to have bit Goldie and Harry a little harder. They became Mr. and Mrs.

Harry Queen. Our heartiest congratulations, Goldie and Harry. It couldn't have happened to two nicer people. Many new steady couples were added to the corps over the holidays, also. Spring must not be far off.

To Margaret and Eddie and the rest of the Valentine Court, we also offer congratulations. You're a deserving bunch.

Big plans must be in the making for the Valentine Dance. Living next door to the Nemo President I can hear much whispering and giggling. Incidentally, boys, I did overhear the girls saying that they were requesting you not to give the girls flowers for this special occasion in order to cut down the expenses for the dance. Isn't that nice of them?

We're surely going to miss Jo Smart, Ronnie Money, Charlie Adams, and all the rest of the people who will leave us through graduation at the end of the semester. Here's hoping you won't forget us and do come back for frequent visits. Our best wishes go with you as you go on to higher goals.

May I add my word of admiration to Mr. Alex McFadden and his cast for the superb job they did in "Time Out for Ginger". It was one of the finest performances I'd ever seen and I'm sure everyone who saw it feels the same.

That drizzle of rain on the window pane makes me want to go rambling off into dreamland, but as usual, there's more work to be done. That's the way the cookie crumbles in the life of a college student.

Dull student or brain — it seems to me most students are now "glued" to their rooms or the library to do a bit of last minute cramming. With finals directly around the bend, the extra-curricular activities have at last become a secondary item of most Brevard students list.

Congratulations to Professor Alex B. McFadden, the Masquers, and the cast for "Time Out For Ginger" for a bang-up performance Saturday night. The play was well polished and displayed many hours of hard work.

The Women's Monogram Club is now a full-fledged organization. Sarah Middleton has been elected president of the group, and Mary Ellen Coffey secretary - treasurer. Already they are making plans for a joint party with the Men's Monogram Club to be held in early spring and to sell class blazers.

Last week the Nemos and Delphians held an election for the Valentine King and Queen and their court. They will reign at the Sweetheart's Ball, the annual dance get a new science building." "About to get" is a relative term," states Dean Bennett.

"The Administration is now studying plans of science buildings and expects to forge ahead with a building program as rapidly as possible. But 'no man knows the day nor the hour' . . . Moreover, the science building is a part of the larger campus envisioned, to include a music and fine - arts building and a gymnasium."

of the two societies.

Before the Christmas vacation, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Roy, advisors for the Kappa Chi, held an open house for its members. Tasty refreshments and enlightening conversation was enjoyed by all.

On February 1 members of the EMA Club will sponsor a Masquerade Ball. Howard Martin, president of the club, urges all students to begin preparing their costumes. Ideas have suggested to range from "Little Bo Peep" to "Lady MacBeth".

Good luck on those finals now AND may your next semester be filled with many happy days.
