who has your own little study schedule, and you do all your outside reading, speak up in class, and rarely go to class unprepared. Actually, under your schedule, you may have found your work load to be decreasing slightly as you accustom yourself to thorough preparation, and you are the fortunate type of person who will do very well on your mid-term. Well, good for you!

Perhaps you are just the "class attender," one who studies in whatever free time you have, with a few short jaunts to Al's interspersed with your studies. You may also take in a movie on the nights that you feel you can forego your studying and catch up before class. You are probably prone to go on studying sprees, in which you spend entire evenings in the library, studying, counting the blocks on the wall, and maybe listening to classical music to improve your all-around well-being. You take notes in the same type of spurts that you study. One day everything seems important to you, and you profusely write down earthshaking facts dictated in class. Other days you don't feel particularly interested, and your pencil may be dull; so you daydream, or cautiously read a letter from home.

You will have to cram just a bit to do fairly well on the exams, and you will find that you are lacking some of the material covered in class. Perhaps you will decide to study with someone whom you feel has

As Brevard College votes—so votes the nation! This was the cry as the results of the election held on the campus were announced: Vice-president Richard Nixon the winner over Senator John Kennedy. For many, shouts; for others, defeat.

The debate which preceded the election centered upon a brilliant presentation by Derwood Brown, and a radical denunciation of Republican policies by Sara Whitmire.

Mr. Brown demonstrated the conservative air of the Republican plan for medical care for the aged.

Miss Whitmire failed in destroying all of Mr. Brown's argument but presented a thorough denunciation of the Republican administration and foreign policy, which Mr. Brown did not completely refute.

The debate was presented by the SGA under the direction of Mr. Frank Harvin.

more complete notes than you do, and you may, but you may also have an uncertain feeling as to whether you are actually prepared to take the exam. You will be thoroughly relieved and satisfied if you get a "C".

You may decide to classify yourself as the type who is chronically unprepared in class, or the "Playboy." You may be the type who depends on class lectures to get you by, and you take a few notes occasionally, but rely mainly on your memory to supply you the answer whenever it is called for. You are quite well acquainted with the interior of Al's, the movie, bowling alley, Austin's, and maybe even a few homes around Brevard. You find that the TV in the lounge consoles you when

Johnson, Riggs Reign At Dance

This Halloween Dance of Brevard College, sponsored by the Women's Athletic Association, was held Saturday night, October 29 in the College Barn from 7:30 to 11:00. The highlight of the dance was the crowning of the Halloween King and Queen — Gayle Johnson, Queen; Jim Riggs, King. Refreshments were served including apple cider and cupcakes. This night was strictly for the girls, in that it is both leap year and Halloween, and the girls tagged the boys for dates and for dances. The dress, too, was typical of that of Halloween.

Decorations featured jack-o-lanterns and autumn leaves along with crepe paper and balloons.

Mrs. Mary Jane Cousins is adviser to the WAA, which takes the Halloween dance as one of its annual projects.

you are bored or lonely, and you probably say, "I'm tired of studying; I think I'll do something else." You may be a great one for visiting in the dorm, and you may date rather often.

When you are in class you may be called upon, only to respond after a long pause, characterized by frenzied turning of the pages in the book before you, with some timid answer which was the subject of the discussion a week ago. Or you may find the answer and seemingly be well prepared.

At any rate, you will very likely not study enough for the exam, and you may make a low grade, and highly anticipate the use of a curve in the grading system. Usually, however, you sit right down and think of every excuse in the book, one of which you will apply to the cause for your poor showing to your parents.

Luck can be with you still, if you prepare thoroughly for each test, and do not have more than two major tests the same day. You may, in fact, salvage some low daily grades from being the cause of failure, if you make good on exams. It's up to you.

TORNADO TALK

Scrimmage Games Planned

The Tornado basketball team, looking forward to the beginning of the 1960-61 season, will travel to Lenoir Rhyne in Hickory tomorrow, November 5, for a scrimmage game. This will be followed next weekend, November 11, with a trip to Western Carolina College, Cullowhee, for another scrimmage, and the following weekend, November 18, with a scrimmage at Pfeiffer College in Misenheimer.

According to Coach "Chick" Martin, the team is having these scrimmages in November this year in order to be better prepared for junior college action during the first part of the season. With last year's experience proving that the greatest number of losses occurred before the Christmas holidays, Coach Martin wants the team as well prepared as possible this year by having the scrimmages.

Players Looking Good

The group of players who have been working together the most on the floor so far are Tom Barbee and Glover Coggins forwards; John Eller, center; and Charlie Jacobs and Larry Brooks, guards.

In addition to these five, three other players are showing up well in practice — Bill Alexander, center Poochie Harris, guard; and Wayne Huntley, forward.

Official Schedule Announced

Coach Martin has announced the official schedule for the 1960-61 basketball season consisting of twenty games plus two tournaments.

The season opens November 25, in the Brevard High School gym with the Junior College Classic Tournament and closes with the Western Carolina Junior College Conference Tournament in Greer, South Carolina, February 22-25.
