Martin To Speak To B.S.U. Group On March 11

The Reverend Charles L. Martin, Jr., an associate secretary in the youth department of the Japan Baptist Convention, will be special speaker at the First Baptist church on Sunday, March 11, at 6:30 o'clock. Mr. Martin will speak on the challenge confronting today's student in the mission of the church.

Mr. Martin is qualified both by experience and training for this subject. In addition to his responsibilities in student work in Japan, he serves as associate pastor of Mejiro ga Oka Baptist Church, Tokyo, teaches a Bible class for students, and writes curriculum material for the Japan Baptist Convention's training organization. He began his college career as an architectural student at Alabama Polytechnic Institute (now Auburn University) and transferred to Howard College, Birmingham, where he received the Bachelor of Arts degree. Graduate degrees earned are the Bachelor of Divinity and Master of Theology from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky.

His wartime service with the U. S. Army Air Force furnished another part of his experience. As a bombardier on a B-29, he flew 31 missions over Japan and received the Distinguished Flying Cross and "a few other medals." One day he saw a Japanese

Lecture Series Climaxed With Communion

Reverend Howard C. Wilkinson, chaplain to the University and Director of Religious Life at Duke University, led the worship services on Brevard Campus during The Religious Emphasis Week from February 25 to March 1. Mr. Wilkinson used as his theme for the week, "Am I My Brother's Keeper?" At each service he spoke on a different aspect of that theme: "The Church Looks at the World, Should the Church Get Out of Politics, Christianity and Communism, Christianity and Sex, Call No Man Common, and The Race for Peace." The week was climaxed by a communion service held Thursday morning at 7:00.

The religious emphasis on campus was not confined to the services that were held in the C. C. B. Each afternoon and each night Mr. Wilkinson was available to the students for individual or group conferences.

Professor Nelson Adams led the group hymn singing and Professor Thomas Cousins directed the College Choir. The hymn for the week was "O Brother Man." Chaplain C. Edward Roy was in charge of plans for Religious Emphasis Week and Louis Miles was faculty advisor to the Planning Committee. Student members of the Committee were: Charles Smith, Ann McConnell, Charlotte Sentelle, Sally Maynard, Douglas Wauchope, Bob Spencer, Mary Bryson, Carole Livingston, Guy God—
