

STUDENT OF THE WEEK

Good-looking, friendly, and versatile is our student of the week, Mr. David Ellerbe from Lakeland, Florida.

David attended Lakeland High School where he played four years of football, two years of basketball, and was on the track team for three years. He was also a member of the Lettermen's Club and was chosen president of his school's chapter of the Honor Crusade. In the capacity of President of this society, David campaigned to encourage the honor system for the students through parents by way of the PTA and other media. His goal was to make the parents aware that pushing their children to make good grades was one of the causes of cheating. His interest and work on this project was recognized when he was selected to meet with the heads of education of Florida in a panel discussion.

David comes from a large family, six children in all. He is very appreciative of all the advantages which he feels go along with a family of this size. He believes that a close family relationship, especially when many different personalities are involved, helps one to be able to get along more successfully with people and to understand them more fully.

As may be surmised by his high school participation in the area, David lists sports as his first and foremost love. This is because, as he says, "I get out of sports exactly as much as I put into them". This affection is followed immediately by a love for horses.

Here at Brevard Dave is a Clio and plays goalie for the Soccer team. Presently a math major, he plans to make engineering his career and hopes to attend the University of Florida, at Gainesville, where he has a chance for a football scholarship.

David's education is being sponsored by the Oakridge Company, but more specifically his sponsor is the president of the company, Mr. R. B. Bergquist, whom he regards as a "second Father".

It is clear that the high ideals and potentiality of this young man have been recognized by others as well as the students of Brevard who have come to regard him as one of their number of whom they can be justly proud.

each of them, I shall certainly do so.

Tell them also I found their letters most interesting, and nicely written.

It was also interesting to note their varied choices as to life work, however ambition seems to be common to all in making the most of their college days, so that they may contribute the utmost to that chosen profession.

I shall be thinking of them day by day, and may God bless them all!

Should they ever have the time to write again, I shall be happy to hear from them.

Sincerely,
Clara Collier Burt

Life Among The Natives

It's coming. Despite the cold winds and the intermittent snow-falls, we know it's coming. It won't be official for some weeks yet, but Brevard Tech students can sense it. SPRING!! It will mark the end of a long, hard winter. (As far as school is concerned, it will mean the beginning of a long, hard spring!) But with it will come many things. Trips to Pisgah, fun, trips to Pisgah, picnics, trips to Pisgah, graduation (for the fortunate) and probably a few trips to Pisgah, too! I, for one, can't wait! Spring also means a one-week break beginning on the 27th. The college will be almost deserted that week, but it's a cinch that the beaches of North and South Carolina and the east coast of Florida won't. A due number of Brewardiers will join the annual riot week at Lauderdale and Daytona, I'm sure. Many of them will return with a lot of happy memories. And then there will be those who won't remember a thing... Taylor Hall has a hall proctor who is quite nosey. Or maybe he's just generous. Since that one little can of beer wasn't quite enough to go around, he decided to turn it in to Dean Robert. Poor John. That really broke his little heart. Mrs. Daye has expressed some surprise that her modern dance class hasn't been mentioned in this column. According to her, the class consists of the biggest bunch of spazes on campus. The truth of the matter is that I didn't want to say anything for fear of angering some of the girls. They really do TRY to master the complications of modern dance, Mrs. Daye. Just give them time. Like a few more years, maybe?

Some sophomores got a nice surprise on Sunday when one of our number showed up for a visit on campus. Sy Stelter shocked more than one person when he popped up, unannounced.

Have you heard about the greatest new combo in the south? (NO, not the Echoes. They're not new: just the greatest!) This one's going under the name of "Slim & the Four Trims." In case the "Slim" sounds a little familiar to you, it should. It's none other than "Slim" Leslie, who brightened the Brevard Campus last year. We understand that they're great. Could be that we'll have a chance to hear them sometime...

That's about it for this issue. See you around in two weeks. Mitchell

Miss Moser To Present Program

Don't forget FRIDAY AT FOUR! This afternoon Miss Joan Moser will give a program on SOUNDS FROM THE LAND OF THE MIDNIGHT SUN.

Miss Moser was a Fulbright student in Norway for a year's study of that country's folk music. In Norway, she was sent throughout the country by the American Embassy to entertain with a program of American folk songs. She was booked to sing over both the Swedish and Norwegian radio systems.

While at the University of North Carolina, where she received her Master's degree in Music History, Miss Moser prepared a series of television programs on Southern folk songs, filmed for the National Educational Television Foundation.

At Brevard, Miss Moser conducts the college ensemble, teaches Sight Singing and Ear Training, and is an instructor in wood winds, guitar and piano.

is the first American tour of the 100-year-old Orchestra which is under the patronage of Prince Rainier III and Princess Grace of Monaco.

Any freshman interested in becoming a member for the 1965-1966 Concert Series should see Mr. Adams immediately. This is a series of great musicians that no music lover will want to miss.

Aided Students' Thoughtfulness Is Appreciated

Students who have written letters of appreciation to persons making financial assistance possible deserve a special word of commendation. I have received more favorable comments this year from donors to student aid funds who have received these letters than ever before. These expressions of gratitude on your part have become cherished keep-sakes for several of these benefactors. I am grateful to each of you who has written.

Below is one example of these letters which the college has received.

Miss Doris E. Montgomery
Brevard College
Brevard, North Carolina

Dear Miss Montgomery,

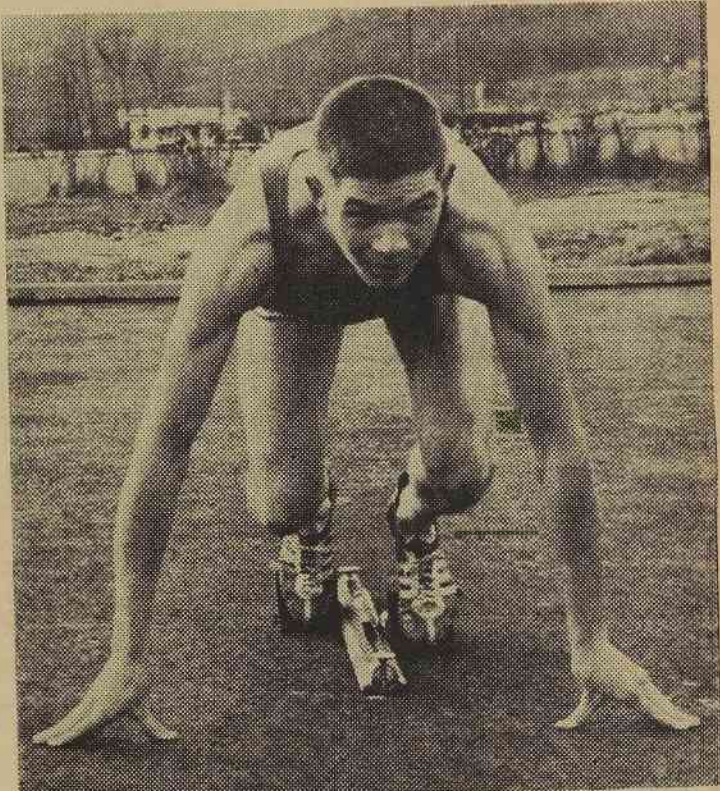

I received your letter and enclosed letters of thanks from the students who received aid from my contribution to Brevard.

All of those nice letters in one mail was sort of overwhelming and made me feel as if I were having a "House Warming Party" or something from a group of young people on that cold day in January.

Counting the letters, I found there were ten—Evidently my contribution had to be divided into small amounts to help that many students.

Anyway, they all seemed grateful, and the fact that I could help even in a small way, made me very happy.

Please tell those students that I am keeping those letters to re-read every now and then as I think of them. In case I find time to reply individually to CARROLL MAXWELL, recent winner of the Sports Mart Trophy for the best high school athlete in Western North Carolina. "Max" won the award for his '64 performances for Hendersonville High School. Here he prepares for a practice sprint in one of the pre-season practice sessions.
