BREVARD COLLEGE, BREVARD, N. C., SEPT. 10, 1965

NUMBER 2

Freshmen take their tests in the DUNHAM MUSIC BUILDING cafeteria under the supervision of Mr. Harrison Tawney.

Orientation Provides "Better Understanding"

TESTS, TESTS, TESTS! But that wasn't all of orientation. President Emmett K. McLarty challenged the freshman students to make the most of their temptations in the beginning orientation program on Sunday, August 29, at the First Methodist Church. He advised them to use their upward temptations to the best advantage and to thwart the ones that pull a person down by standing up to them.

The following night in Boshamer Gymnasium, Dean Willoughby Jarrell and Dean Estor Roberts explained the protocol and rules of the college to the new students. Dean Jarrell said the regulations of Brevard College were few and that as long as one was considerate of others he would have no problems with them. The attitude of the student concerned Dean Roberts, who hoped each one was mature enough to know why he was at the college and to forget the call of "the wild goose."

Also on Tuesday, the students met with their individual advisors. The procedure for registration was discussed and tentative schedules were begun. Four more orientation programs will be held by each student's advisor, and thereafter, individual conferences will be held when desired.

Mrs. Grace Munro, business education teacher, gave the history of Brevard College from its beginning in the early 1850's as the one room Owl Hollow School to its present state. She reminded the students that each of them will leave their imprint upon the history which is still in the making.

On the whole, the students agreed that the programs gave them a better understanding of their school and its customs.

Leaders Arrive Before Semester

Brevard College officially opened Wednesday, August 25, at which time the Faculty-Student Work Conference began.

After devotions by Chaplain Edward Roy, Dean Braxton Harris explained the new divisional organization of the college. A dinner was then held for all faculty and staff and their husbands and wives.

On Friday, August 27, the business statistics of the college were analyzed by the various departments for the information of those attending the workshop. In the evening, The Reverend Maurice Ritchie addressed the conference. He stressed the importance of Christianity permeating the entire life of an individual, not just isolated phases of it.

A breakfast for the student leaders began the last day of the work conference. After the reports of the various student organizations, a picnic was held at Camp Straus at 4:00 to end —Turn to Page Two

NOTICE

The first SGA meeting will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 14. Freshmen are urged not to allow themselves to be pushed into passing the proposed Constitution. Ask that copies be given to all students and that a reasonable amount of time be allowed for study.

Convocation Held

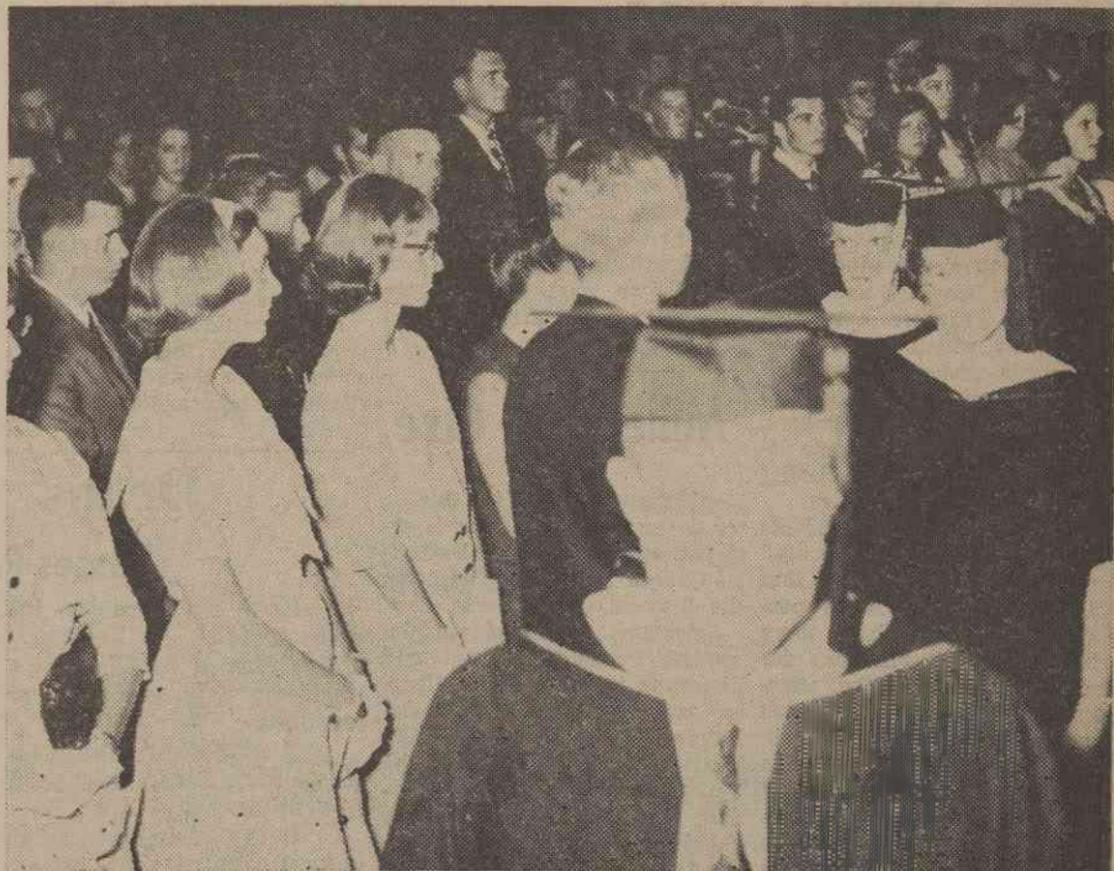

The Fall Convocation was held on September 1, 1965, in the Dunham Music Center Auditorium. The meeting was opened by the Academic Procession and Processional: "Trumpet Voluntary" by Larry Whatley. Miss Martha Gibbs sang "God Is My Shepherd" after the invocation by Chaplain C. Edward Roy, who presided at the meeting. Dean J. Braxton Harris then introduced the faculty.

President Emmett K. McLarty addressed the student body stressing the importance of taking advantage of the educational opportunities offered them. The meeting was closed with the school hymn, "Immortal, Invisible" and the benediction.

Reception Is Held

The students of Brevard College were honored on Saturday, September 4, at 8:00 with the annual President's Reception.

As the Beam Administration Building was entered, the students were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Roy, Dr. and Mrs. Emmett McLarty, and Dean and Mrs. Braxton Harris. Several teachers, as well as some of the Big Sisters, also greeted the visitors. Refreshments were served at this time.

Mr. Harvey Miller, Mrs. Ruth Alexander, and Mrs. Harris lead in the Brevard College instructors at FALL CONVOCATION.

Dear Student Leaders,

Thank you for the help and consideration you have given us since we arrived on campus. From carrying luggage for the girls to getting us to meetings on time, you have been there when a helping hand was needed.

But being helpful is not really the most important thing you've done for us. Just being our friends and showing us that we are wanted here at Brevard College is more appreciated than you will ever know. Each of you has gone out of his way to do that.

If we can help the 1966 freshman class as much as you have helped us, we can truthfully say that we have received much benefit from our first year at Brevard.

Sincerely,
 Freshman Class
