Boxer Trio Presents Finest Lyceum Ever

The Karl Boxer Trio from Charlotte, N. C., entertained the Brevard College student body with a classical jazz concert at the lyceum program on September 24.

Mr. Nelson Adams, head of the music department at Brevard, introduced the trio.

Their program consisted of favorites such as MISTY, SOLAR, JAZZ NOCTURN, songs from the WEST SIDE STORY, and MY FAIR LADY as well as original tunes, all in a modern, jazzed up form. Tim Smith, the drummer, and Rusty Young, the bass violinist, were both featured in several of the selections. Mr. Boxer ended the show with good advice, "No matter how bad the going gets, SMILE" and then played the song bearing that title.

After the concert the trio talked with interested students for a short while. Mr. Boxer explained his playing as a "progression in harmony" jazz and demonstrated the differences between his own and the more conventional method of playing.

His method of programming was designed in order that he might fit the music to the mood of his audience. This, all the trio insisted, was so important that their only regular songs were those from WEST SIDE STORY.

The three musicians are now recording a new album, Karl Goes to Kollege, to be released in the near future. They are also working on jazz variations with THE SOUND OF MUSIC and other popular musicals. The trio invited all the students to drop in at Karl Boxer's night club in Charlotte, The Keyboard.

Dr. Tate Speaks On Smoking-Health

Dr. Charles F. Tate, Jr., associate professor of medicine of the Miami School of Medicine, was guest speaker at Brevard College during the assembly period from 1:00 to 2:00 p.m., Tuesday, September 28. His subject was "Smoking and Health."

Dr. Tate is a dynamic speaker. He used projection slides and real lungs to emphasize his points in a most vivid manner.

The Western N. C. Tuberculosis Association, of which Jeanette Austin of Brevard is president, is sponsoring Dr. Tate's three-day lecture tour during which he will speak to several thousand students in the 17-county district.

Dr. Tate holds many offices in voluntary health agencies as well as those associated with his professional field. Besides his teaching at the University of Miami Medical School in Miami, Florida, he is director of the

Brevard Begins Expansion; Duplex Dorm Slated First

Diane Warman

Plans for a $1.75 million building phase were announced by Mr. C. W. Butterworth, Brevard College Business Manager. This includes the construction of four new buildings and the renovation of Dunham Music Center and the present Library. To be built are a duplex dormitory, a new library, a cafeteria and a classroom building. The phase is hoped to be completed in 2-3 years.

Dunham Music Center, now being renovated in the upstairs area, will be completely renovated after the cafeteria, college book store and student lounge are moved. The renovation will cost in the excess of $50,000. The art and drama classes will be moved to the lower floor and the name changed to Dunham Fine Arts Center.

The library will be renovated to contain all the student organizations including Student Government Association, The Pertelote, and The Clarion offices, and the Student Lounge. The cost of the renovation has not been estimated.

The first building to be constructed will be $25,000 duplex dormitory. The college hopes to advertise for bids within the next thirty days. It will be a two-winged duplex with 80 male students in one wing and 80 female students in the other. The projected target date for completion is August 15, 1966.

The next proposed building will be the library costing $450,000. A grant of $150,000 and a loan of $188,000 is expected under the Higher Education Act, Public Law 88-204. The remaining balance of 25% of the development will come from Brevard College funds.

Brevard has applied for a $250,000 self liquidatory loan for the construction of a new Food Service Center. Also in the plans, is a $270,000 classroom building which will complete the quadrangle. The building will house the English, Business, Religion, and the Social Science Departments. The present classroom Center Building will be razed.

In this expansion program, there is approximately $350,000 of Brevard College funds. As this $350,000 is raised, an additional $200,000 will become available to the college. This second sum is in the form of a three-two basis challenge grant from C. Greir Beam, of Carolina Freight Carriers. Mr. Beam, long time college benefactor and trustee from Cherryville, N. C., is the man for whom the Beam Administration Building was named.

In this program, the student body is expected to increase to 800 students.

There will be no enlargement of the present campus, although 4.98 acres have been bought for a retreat at a cost of $3,984.

There will be no increase in student tuition.

plan to restrict the number of students?"

Dr. McLarty: "To keep the student body to 800, we would have to be more selective in our accepting of applicants. This year, we took one out of three applications. Over the last five years, the college has gained a reputation in the academic field and has also gained a reputation outside. Applications are increasing."

The Clarion: "Does Brevard intend to keep enlarging?"

Dr. McLarty: "It is not determined as to whether we are going four-year or not. Right now, we hope to become specialists in the two-year college program."

The Clarion: "What is planned after the building phase is completed?"

Dr. McLarty: "When we complete all our facilities, the emphasis will then be put on endowment, in an attempt to keep student costs down. But the baby boom is not over; the trend is supposed to start up again next year. I can't encourage anyone to feel that college costs are going to decrease."

The Clarion: "Dr. McLarty, do you feel that any one group is particularly responsible for the growth of the college?"

Dr. McLarty: "We would like to compliment the College Development Committee. The members of this Committee are Mrs. Grace Munro (Chairman), Dean Braxton Harris, Dr. Ora Railsback, W. Glenn Hardesty, and C. W. Butterworth. These people have worked long and hard on the building project. We would like to thank them for their efforts."

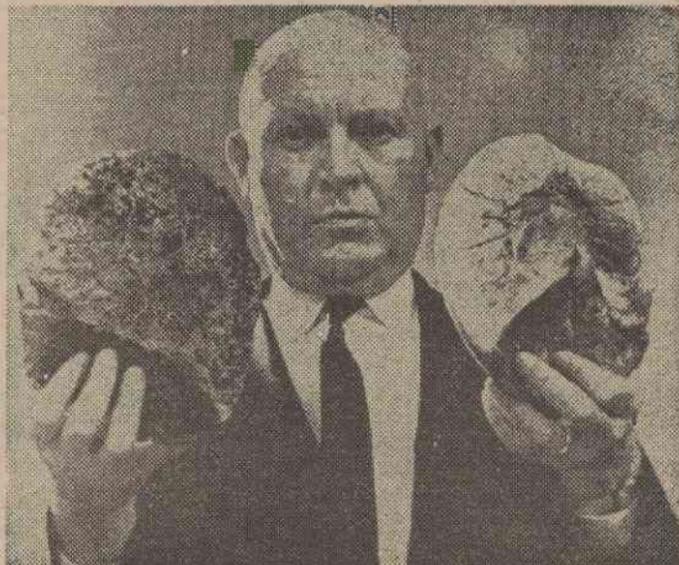

Dr. McLarty Views Brevard's Growth

Brevard College is currently embarking on a long-term building program. The Clarion went to Dr. Emmett McLarty to find out what this means to the future of the college. Following is an informal conversation between Dr. McLarty and a Clarion reporter.

The Clarion: "Dr. McLarty, why is Brevard beginning the improvement plan?"

Dr. McLarty: "The building program is to care more adequately for the needs of the students. There is an advantage to a larger student body. There is a golden mean between bigness and a small college. We can diversify a student activity program more with a larger student body. There will be more chances for leadership to be developed. Eight hundred students is viewed as the maximum by the trustees. This is the number that our new buildings are being built to accommodate."

The Clarion: "How do you
