

STUDENT OF WEEK — Bill Payton (standing) helps Sebastian Cooke during a lab recently. Payton was selected by the Clarion as an outstanding student on the BC campus.

Bill Payton Chosen Student Of The Week

Enthusiasm, drive, concern, and ability are a few of the characteristics of a good leader. All of these and more are to be found in this week's Student of the Week, Bill Payton.

Bill, a native of Stanford Conn., is President of the Student Government Association, a role of vital importance at Brevard College.

He was President of the Freshmen Class second semester last year, and was elected to his present position at the end of the spring semester. One of his utmost concerns as S.G.A. president is to incorporate better communication between the students and the Student Government. The SGA, he says, should not degenerate to the level of a puppet organization, with the administration pulling all of the strings. The S.G.A. he says, is here to represent the student body, and the students should bring all of their problems to its attention.

Bill is an ardent participant in all water sports and is an excellent swimmer. Here at Brevard he teaches Life Saving and has taught Water Safety.

Bill is a pre-med. student and hopes to continue his education at Carolina next year.

Bill exemplifies the quality of unselfish student representation, a factor necessary in any position of student leadership. The Clarion salutes Bill Payton as its Student of the Week.

BEST Seeks Student Tutors

Brevard Educational Student Tutors (BEST) is in need of tutors for the local Elementary School.

For the past 4 years, Brevard College students have given two hours of their time each week to tutor elementary children. The school system is highly complimentary of the work that BEST has done in the past.

Any Brevard student who would like to perform a much needed public service may come to a preliminary meeting on Monday, Sept. 16, at 4 p.m. in Classroom Building 211 and learn more details about tutoring. No previous experience is necessary.

BEST is the service project of the Brevard College Student Education Association. You need not be a member, however, to be a tutor.

Biology Department Sets Fast Pace In Orientating Students

NATURE'S NOOK

The Haunted Mill Art Gallery is now open and will be open until September 15. The present structure was restored in 1966, but the earliest structure dates back to the colonial period.

The Haunted Mill Art Gallery accomodates original works of art by contributing artists, many world renowned. Also on display are various crafts and sculpture. The gallery held a summer workshop for interested artists and craftsmen this summer June 15 to September 15. Details about enrolling for next summer may be obtained at the gallery.

Located on the old Cherokee Indian Trail which meandered from the French Broad River along Big Willow Creek, across Echo Mountain, up to Jump-Off, the site of the Old Mill was the favorite camping grounds of the Cherokee Indians. Here they pounded their corn and watered their horses. Here, too, by the sparkling waterfalls of the Old Mill race, they paused to play and bathe in the silvery waters of Willow Creek.

Some say the ghost of Willow Creek is the spirit of a Cherokee Indian who haunts his favorite hunting ground. Some say it is the Indian lover of the maiden who leaped from Jump-Off rock. Is it a moonshadow? A country myth? The unimaginative laugh and say there is no ghost at all, but the ol' timers of Big Willow do not scoff. They know when the moon is full and there is trouble in the valley; the Ghost still roams along the old mill stream. The locked doors of the old mill quietly open, and voices whisper softly above the roaring waters.

The Haunted Mill is located about twelve miles from the BC campus toward Hendersonville on Highway 64. Turn right at Cummings Road and continue for 2½ miles. Turn left and continue for ½ mile to Old Mill on Willow Creek.

With the beginning of the school year the Biology department has adapted to the fast pace that comes with every new year. Already, biology students are learning about the basic scientific facts that govern all living things. During the lab sessions, students will be proving these facts for themselves. They will also be using these various facts to formulate conclusions based on their observation.

Next week's lab will be an observation of various cells. Under the microscope, students will see the general setup of the smallest living part of an organism, the cell. This is called morphology, the study of cells, and it is the first part in any biology course.

Mrs. Potts is handling the only zoology section for any sophomores that are making another attempt at the course. It will be run in the same manner that it was last year. Labs and lectures will first be concerned with lower forms of life and move gradually upward until zoology students will be studying the organic system of man.

One innovation to the Biology Department is the purchase of lab utensils by the students, rather than having them supplied by the department. This was done because dissecting equipment was misused last year, and it's always safe to assume that one takes better care of what is his than of what belongs to another.

All labs have been scheduled from 1:00 to 4:00 this year. This is probably welcomed by most students because it leaves a little time before dinner for any extra-curricular activities. Lab instructors and assistants also welcome the free time.

Progress is wonderful. The man who started smoking when he got out of high school now has a son who quits when he gets out.

Many discoveries are made by accident, such as finding cobwebs on the ceiling while gargling.

NEWS BRIEFS

Beverly Postell, Donis Kaye Holtzklaw, and Wayne Morton attended a yearbook workshop at Camp Deerwoode near Brevard in early August. Donis Kaye is editor of the Pertelote.

A 1968 honor graduate of Brevard College, Jo Ann Pace of Brevard, served as a student missionary with the Utah-Idaho Southern Baptist Convention. She is a rising junior at Mars Hill College.
