

Mudd Attacks Older Generation

"The present generation of America leadership has not done very well and the younger generation is trying to tell them something," commented CBS News Analyst Roger Mudd during a lecture he presented at Campbell College, February 17. "And they're not willing to listen."

"The young people, just generally speaking, have had every material want satisfied," he continued. "They've grown up in security, comfort, and warmth, and they no longer need to worry about being fed, struggling like young people did in the twenties, and their main interest is something else. It's morality and it's honesty and what you do with your country, rather than what you do with yourself."

"They're telling the present turer and has spoken at n-generation, 'You have screwed up this country'."

Mudd is an outspoken lecturer at numerous colleges and universities throughout the country.

Committee Reports Are Released, Discussed In Tuesday Assembly

The reports of the Committee on Social Behavior and the Committee on Attendance and Penalties were presented for discussion to the student body by the respective committees in an assembly Tuesday.

John Setzer, Chairman of the Committee on Attendance and Penalties, and David Holcombe, Chairman of the Committee on Social Behavior, briefly outlined the reports and attended questions from students concerning them.

E. Wannamaker Hardin, Chairman of the Presidential Council, commented prior to the reports' presentation:

"Last fall, the Presidential Council took on a bold, new venture. We decided to let the faculty and the students set their own standards."

The Presidential Council created the two eight-member committees in a meeting in mid-fall. The Presidential Council and the Student Government Association each appointed two faculty members and two students for the two committees.

"We express our thanks to the committees for their work," concluded Mr. Hardin, "and recognize that they did take their tasks seriously."

Mr. Setzer proposed the report of the Committee on Attendance and Penalties by outlining the two-fold policies of the report. The first proposal, Section I of the report, deals with "an abolishment and an improvement" of the present chapel and lyceum programs.

The two types of programs would be merged with a minimum of fifteen each semester. A student must attend twelve of the fifteen programs each semester suggested further by the report. "The reasons for this are twofold," explained Mr. Setzer. "First, this will provide for a greater latitude of events. Secondly, it is the belief of the college and the committee that those who graduate from Brevard College should have more learning than that obtained from books, laboratory practices, etc."

The second part of the report, Section 2, outlined an attendance policy. Under the present attendance policy, quality points are deducted for class absences.

"It is to be understood," stated Mr. Setzer, "that deduction of q-p's is not to be tolerated."

In support of this, Mr. Setzer explained that under the proposal of the committee, each division of academics at Brevard College shall establish the appropriate penalties for absences. In addition, each student of regular academic standing shall be entitled to three unexcused absences in the three hour courses which meet three times a week.

Mr. David Holcombe proposed the report of the Committee on Social Behavior. In his initial comment, the committee chairman stated, "This report recognizes two separate points."

"The first point it recognizes," he proceeded, "is that students are men and women. The second point it recognizes is that students are not men and women."

Mr. Holcombe clarified his statement by stating that although students are ideally men and women, they are actually men and women, they are actually not.

"This is the reason for our proposed counseling system and believe me, counseling is a heck of a lot different from being punished," he further commented.

The report covers all facets of college social life and proposes several radical changes. Among the changes suggested are:

1. AN EMPHATIC REGULATING TO UNAUTHORIZED ENTRANCE OF DORMITORY ROOMS. The report proposes that no one may enter a room without asking permission of the occupant, except in the case of room inspection, legitimate search, fire, other emergency.

2. A PROPOSED PROGRAM OF AN ANSWERING SERVICE ESTABLISHED THROUGH THE OFFICE OF THE FINANCIAL AID OFFICER. Thus, drafting students to work as receptionist in the parlor is prohibited. However, money for the grant-in-aid is not yet available.

3. ABOLITION OF THE PRESENT HALL PROCTOR-HOUSE COUNCIL SYSTEM OF DORMITORY GOVERNMENT. A system of Dormitory Counselors, one for each dorm floor, is proposed by the report.

JACKIE TYLER — In modeling contest.

Jackie Tyler Competes In New York Contest

Jackie Tyler competed in the "Miss Ingenue Contest" held March 27 - 30 in New York City. On March 26 Jackie appeared on the Carroll Godwin, On Camera Show.

Miss Tyler is a professional model, trained by Lu-Ann Modeling and Finishing School in Charleston, S. C. She has entertained for the Miss America Teenager Contest as well as participated in many contests and talent shows.

The contest is sponsored by the Modeling Association of America. The judging includes runway techniques, make-up, choice of costume, hairstyling, and overall presentation and personality. There were also classes, rehearsals, press parties, luncheons, banquets and contests.

According to Miss Tyler, photographic and T.V. modeling are her favorites. The motions are not as restricted as they are in fashion. In photographic modeling the feel of freedom can be expressed. In T.V. modeling the feeling of reaching many people is great.

Jackie is a sophomore at Brevard. During her two years on the campus she has been a member of the Homecoming Court both years, SGA social chairman, Big Sister and a Euterps.

Euterps Will Hold Egg Hunt

The Euterps will sponsor an Easter egg hunt and egg rolling contest Saturday from 3-4 p. m. Children should gather in front of Jones Hall.

The children or grandchildren of all college employees are invited to attend. Prizes will be given to the finder of the "Golden" egg and the winner of the egg rolling contest.

Each child should bring a pancake turner or a big spoon for the egg rolling contest.

Glee Club Will Begin Tour April 7

The Brevard College Glee Club, composed of fifty men and women students and the oldest and largest choral group on campus, will be on tour April 7 - 15.

The tour will center primarily in Washington, D. C., and New York City areas. The group will appear in churches and high schools in Petersburg, Richmond, Arlington, and Alexandria, in Park Ridge, New Jersey, and in New York City. The concert repertoire consists of great standards from the past and selected material from contemporary composers. Lighter music from musicals and novelty types are included by the group.

A special section of the Glee Club is the Madrigal Singers (sixteen members), who will be featured in several selections in all programs.

The director of the Glee Club is Rev. Nelson F. Adams, Head of the Music Department. Mr. Adams has been awarded degrees in music from Duke University and Union Theological Seminary, School of Sacred Music in New York City. He is currently in the doctoral program of Union Seminary.

"Friday At Four"

The students who attended the symposium on "Urban Renewal" in Winston-Salem at Wake Forest University last weekend will report to the student body on this experience at a "Friday at 4" in Jones lobby. All are invited to attend. Mr. Wilson will be discussion leader.
