Moorman, A Former Drug Dependent, Speaks In Assembly

Robert Moorman, a former associate of Dr. Timothy Leary and a drug dependent himself for six years, told of the horrors of drug abuse at Brevard College on October 7, 1970, in Dunham Auditorium at 10:00 a.m.

In 1961 Mr. Moorman went to Cambridge, Mass. to begin his college studies. It was there that he was introduced to and started using drugs, back when hippies were called beatniks. It was not long after he had started college that Mr. Moorman "dropped out."

During the next six years,

Mr. Moorman experimented with marijuana (extensive use), morphine and heroin (eight months addiction), L.S.D. and mescaline (four years off and on), amphetamines (five years off and on), solvents and glues (limited use), romalar (limited use), barbiturates (limited use), and various assorted pills from time to time.

The end of the road for the drug dependent Robert Moorman came in 1966 when he was arrested in Tampa, Florida, for grand larceny and possession of narcotics. For fourteen months, confined behind the fences of the Florida State and County Prison system, Robert Moorman began a most painful and agonizing rehabilitation.

After Mr. Moorman's release from prison, a whole new world opened to him again, one that he had not known for six long years.

For the past two years, Mr. Moorman has lectured at high schools, preparatory schools, colleges and universities from coast-to-coast. As in his previous lectures, Mr. Moorman gave a fresh, sincere and candid approach to the mounting problem of drug abuse.

Members of the Western North Carolina United Nations Association held a meeting and a dinner at the University of North Carolina - Asheville on October 1, in observance of the 25th anniversary of the U.N. Representatives from some of the area colleges were there. Brevard was represented by Miss Bea Burgess, Barbara Hall, Enety Takundwa, and Christina Oosthoek.

Before the dinner, the students met to ask questions. Some of the students thought that the United Nations should be scrapped because it had failed to keep the peace. One student observed the fact that the U.N. is like a young child and should be given a chance to grow up.

The speaker at the meeting, Dr. Joseph E. Johnson, President of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in New York, spoke about some of the aspects of the U.N.

Dr. Johnson commented on the fact that even though the United Nations has failed in many areas, it has succeeded in many others. For example, the U.N. is keeping the peace on the island of Cyprus between the Greeks and the Turks.

Many people wonder why the U.N. is not stepping in and helping countries. Dr. Johnson said that the U.N. cannot help any country unless that country asks for help. The newer countries today want to handle their own affairs.

Dr. Johnson said that the U.N. has made two big mistakes. One is promising the Palestinian refugees that they would be allowed to go back to their homes. The second mistake is pulling the U.N. troops out of the Middle East at the request of Nasser in 1967.
