

JOHN FINN AND CHAUCER rehearse their parts in the musical Camelot to be presented in Dunham Auditorum on April 15, 16, 17. John plays the role of Pellinore who wanders into the court of Camelot, and remains to become Arthur's friend, comrade and confidant. Chaucer (who belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Tim Murray) plays the role of Pellinore's traveling companion, Horrid.

Intramural Basketball Finals Are In Progress

Another basketball season has reached its conclusion, and seven intramural teams prepared for the tournament, which points towards a wide open three day session.

In the first round of play which began last Thursday night, Green B & II virtually demolished Taylor B & II; Taylor I & III upset Beam; and the Day Students and the Faculty clashed with a victory for the Faculty and a berth in the semi-finals against Green B & II.

Green B & II's Frank Blount scored 23 points in his team's 115 - 21 annihilation of Taylor B & II. Blount was followed in the scoring by Allen Smith with 19 points; Dave Jolley, 18; Mike Cox, 16; Jerry Niesson, 13; and Harley "Brian" Smith amassed 12. Taylor's regular starters did not play, and a completely new line-up was substituted, but Taylor's misfortunes continued as they finished the season with an 0-13 record.

Taylor I & II upset fourth place Beam by a score of 77-50 in the second quarter-final game. Greg "Kentucky" Hart led Taylor's scoring with 29 points, and Dennis Brown and "Nurd" tallied 18 and 16 points respectively. The game was fairly close until the last ten minutes when Taylor hit everything they threw at the basket while Beam could not buy a basket. Tommy Gizinski and John Henderson led Beam's offensive efforts with 18 and 11 points.

The Faculty had to fight for their lives to defeat the Day Students in the last quarter-final game, 64-58. Larry Burch and McCants led the scoring with 30 points and 14 points in that order. Mike Thorpe, Mike Smith, and Tommy Carpenter led the Day Student scoring with 19, 16, and 11 points respectively.

In the semi-final round of play Green I & III defeated Taylor I & III by a 62-54 margin. Green's overall height proved too much for the scrappy Taylor contingent. Dave Crawford and Jerry Tuttle led the Green Scoring with 17

Dr. Paul Limbert To Speak At UNC-A

Dr. Paul Limbert, retired Princeton professor, has participated March 3 - 10 in a Citizens Conference on Ending the War in Indochina. About 165 Americans were invited by the American Friends Service Committee, the Fellowship of Reconciliation and Clergymen and Laymen concerned about Vietnam.

Dr. Limbert will share his experiences on Sunday evening, March 21, 7:30, at N. N. C. - A. in the Humanities Hall. This is the Sunday that students return from vacation; plan to return early so you can hear this. Bring your friends! The Conference had two main purposes:

1. To enable all participants to meet directly with the principals of the conflict in Indochina, representing all sides of the negotiations, and learn what the real requirements are to end the war in Indochina in 1971.

2. To prepare the participants to share their experiences with a variety of groups in the community after their return, in order to gain popular support for steps that must be taken to make peace a reality." The March 21 meeting is being sponsored by the Western Carolina Chapter of United Nations Associates and the Western North Carolinians for Peace.

Graduation Is Nearing For Brevard Sophomores

By Laurie Pearson
Spring will soon be here, and with spring comes the anticipation and also the dread, felt by many of us sophomores. Sophomores are given a number of alternatives after graduating from Brevard. Many, as can be expected, transfer to four year schools and universities. For these, Brevard has been merely a stepping stone, a beginning, paving the way for a further education. Others will not be going on in their education. Brevard has then paved the way for them as they go out into the business world. Many jobs are opening up for those with a Jr. College diploma, and we wish these students luck.

A few, maybe more than we realize, will be married. Brevard has perhaps, or hopefully, prepared them for this step also, in that through meeting people of diverse backgrounds, they can better cope with their marital problems.

Sophomores are now in their final term at Brevard. For many, a final goal will be reached — graduation.

Later this semester the Clarion will place forms in each sophomore's mailbox, as to his future plans, a short survey form, the results of which will be published prior to graduation. This will ask for each student's hometown, transfer plans, and his opinions as to what Brevard College has meant to him, as well as other information. This can be an interesting project if cooperation is obtained. Further information will be forthcoming.

Take A Friend To Lunch, Not A Dog

May I have your attention please? Thank you.

I have been asked by a person employed here on campus to ask you, the students, to please not bring certain companions with you to the cafeteria. To be more specific, please do not bring dogs into the dining hall.

I know that to many of you dinner just isn't complete unless it is accompanied by a furry little canine pawing at your side begging for a portion of your repast.

However, it may surprise some of you to learn that many people are offended by the sight of dogs eating, scratching, and doing whatever else dogs do, under the very table from which they are dining.

And it should also be pointed out that the N. C. State Board of Health can close down a public eating establishment any time they see an animal within such a place.

So tomorrow take a friend to lunch, not a dog.

Girls Volleyball Competition Is Nearing End Of Season

Beam Basement's long season finally came to a conclusion Monday night, as they lost to Jones II in the quarterfinals of the volleyball tournament. Jones II led by the scoring of Joyce Gibson and Linda Tresca, six and three points respectively, and won the first game 15-8.

The second game was not even close as Jones II's Vicki Gilstrap scored the first ten points of the game, and Jones went on to win 15-1. Although Beam Basement did not win a game all season, they always showed up with hustle and desire. They lost the tournament, but they won and deserve the "Fickle Hand of Fate Award of 1971."

Beam I also advanced into semi-finals by defeating Jones Basement 15-11, 6-15, and 15-3. Mary Ann Springfield tallied thirteen points in the series for Beam I. Lynn Summerlin and Sue Vale scored eight and six points respectively. Jones Basement's scoring was led by Carol Williams' ten points and Jean Conner's eight.

As a result of Monday's action Beam I and Jones III clashed Tuesday night in a semi-final game. Jones III won the game 15-6 and 15-9. Susanne Johnston scored nine points and Debbie Jones and Terry Davis scored eight apiece. The victory places them in the championship game which was played after the paper went to press. Beam I's scoring was led by Linda Quinn and Sue Vale with four points apiece.

In the other semi-final game Beam III was upset by Jones II by the scores of 15-11 and 15-11. Laura Clarke paced the losing effort with eleven points and Kathy Stith scored five. Several players were outstanding for Jones II; among these were Terri McManus, who scored 13 of the team's fifteen points in the second game; Carolyn Hiler, who scored 6 points; and Ann Brice, whose fine defensive play led Jones II's comeback victory in the second game.

So the stage is set for the championship game between Jones II and Jones III. It's a rematch of the championship game in basketball which saw Jones II the victor. Exactly what will happen this time?
