

BC students take to the slopes.

Slopes Hold attraction For Brevard Students

Bumps, lumps, falls, and bruises. All of these were evident during the week of December 19-24 as thirty-two Brevard College students along with English teacher Mr. Roger Taylor took to the ski slopes near Boone, N. C.

During this week, everyone involved attempted to learn how to ski. The course was taught by the French-Swiss Ski College whose North Carolina headquarters are centered in Boone. Fourteen colleges from around the state as well as some from South Carolina sent students to the slopes.

According to Mr. Taylor, the slopes were mostly ice and bare patches the first night, but by Monday the snow had once again laid down a shimmering path for those intrepid enough to venture out into them. Although there were some rough moments the first few days, by the end of the session most of the students had become fairly proficient skiers.

Costs per student ran $95 which included all equipment, food, and lodging. There were no really serious accidents although any of the several attempts at swimming pool at the Holiday Inn could have ended in disaster.

Those Brevard College students who attended the course received one hour of Physical Education credit toward their graduation requirements.

Mime Demonstration Given

E. Reid Gilbert of the Wisconsin Mime Theatre will be on the Brevard College campus on Sunday evening, February 6, at 8:15 p.m. in Dunham Auditorium to present a free lecture with demonstration on Mime. The Wisconsin Mime Theatre on tour presents the following programs: "Mimeworks," "Higglety Pigglety Pop," "A Slight Ache and Silence," "Gertrude Stein: Space of Time Filled with Moving," and "Appalachia and Other Folk." Dr. Gilbert has not indicated which of these particular programs he will be presenting.

Please make it a point to attend this unique and interesting program. It should prove to be a most enjoyable experience.

Local Stars In Play

The National Shakespeare Company's presentation of "Romeo and Juliet," Sunday, January 30, was of special interest to Brevardians. That interest was stimulated by the fact that the star of "Romeo and Juliet" was Brevard's own Nancy Hammill.

Miss Hammill was born in Concord, N. C. but moved to Brevard when she was one year old, where she lived until graduating from Brevard High School. Miss Hammill then entered Western Carolina University where she was a leading member of the WCU Players until her graduation in 1975 with a degree in Fine Arts.

The play was directed by Philip Meister, artistic director of the National Shakespeare Company and a veteran of twenty-five years of off-Broadway theatre.

Brevard College Chamber Ensemble

Chamber Ensembl To Travel

The Brevard College Chamber Ensemble will be on tour in North Carolina, beginning Sunday, February 13, and continuing through Wednesday, February 16, 1977.

The Chamber Ensemble consists of 31 students, both singers and instrumentalists, and performs sacred and secular music. Within the group is a brass ensemble, the 16-member Chamber Singers, a rock combo, and vocal and instrumental soloists. Organized by the director, Virginia Tillotson, this versatile touring group performs music ranging from the church music of the 17th Century composer Francesco Durante, to the now popular disco styles of the contemporary scene. Ellen Taylor serves as accompanist for the ensemble and is Instructor of Brass at Brevard College.

"Say!" yelled the farmer who owned the pond, "don't you see that sign: 'No Fishing Here?'"

"I sure do," said the disgusted fisherman. "The guy who printed that sign knew what he was talking about!"
