

Brevard College now selling Christmas trees

by Sandy Rogers

Why not buy your Christmas tree this year from Brevard College?

Brevard College is selling Christmas trees to add to the student scholarship fund. "It's a pilot program," said Mark Bailey, director of development. "We need to find an alternative source of financial aid and this is one way."

The cost of the 6-foot-tall fraser fir trees is $40. One-half of this price is a tax-deductible contribution for the student scholarship fund.

"We're only going to sell top-quality trees," said Bailey. The Christmas trees are grown in Brevard on tree farms, and Bailey said that they "received the best agricultural care."

There are two ways to buy a Christmas tree from Brevard College. Parents may order one by sending in the form that they received in the mail, or a student may buy one from Bill Moore's Christmas Tree Club on campus.

For those of you who are wondering how to get a Christmas tree home, Bailey said, "We'll tie them up with twine, and put them in the back of students' car."

At the Parents' Weekend talent show, Shane Milling, left, and Ace Lebo, entertain. (BC photo by Eric Klingensmith)

Buy a slave

by Cathy Haynie

How would you like someone to wait on you hand and foot for a day?

Your chance has come. SGA will be selling "slaves" on Friday, Nov. 21 in the cafeteria at 5:30 p.m.

Yes, you read right. SGA is sponsoring a "Slave Day" in which members will be auctioned off. The bidding will start at $2 per person. The bidder with the highest bid will get to use his slave on Saturday, Nov. 22 from 12-6 p.m. Slave duties include such tasks as cleaning bathrooms, doing laundry, shopping — anything within reason.

This is the first time SGA has ever done anything like this. Shane Milling, co-vice-president of SGA, said that SGA isn't sure where the money raised will go as of yet — perhaps to a needy family for Christmas. Since this is a first time project, SGA officers, representatives, and personnel are the ones who are being put on the line or rather the slave block as they put themselves up for auction.

Members being sold are: Susan Bethel, Andrea Ross, Shane Milling, Heather Chamberlain, Chris Hood, John Wildrick, Brian Sewell, Greg Gambrel, Ann Defenbaugh, Terri Stone, Carol Besco, Frances Lineburger, Amy McKeegan, Natalie Harris, and John Hoback.

Jeff Punches, Ace Lebo, Steve Galezieski, Jeff Tucker, Robert Cooler, Christy McKendry, Melissa Miles, Rachel Makupson, Molly Rhen, Jay Schultz, and Robert Brooks will also be up for auction.

Xmas program set

The college's annual Christmas program and tree-lighting ceremony is being planned for Sunday and Monday, Dec. 7 and 8 at 7:30 p.m., presented by the Fine Arts Division as a part of the Life and Culture Series.

The program in Dunham Auditorium features the annual candlelight service of sacred and secular music, Christmas texts, and the lighting of the campus Christmas tree by President Billy Greer.

CSF rocking along

by April Woods

Who says Christians don't like to rock?

Not the Christian Student Fellowship group here at Brevard College. They're making a trip to Atlanta on Saturday, Nov. 22 to see Christian contemporary pop singer Michael W. Smith in concert. Smith is the performer of such songs as "Friends," "Great is the Lord", and "The Race is On."

But, CSF is not just a group of people who get together to go to concerts. The group's president, Tammi Jones, says "It's a group of college kids who get together for some good fellowship."

Weekly meetings are held Tuesday nights in the cafeteria. From 5 to 5:30, the group eats dinner, then, from 5:30 to 6:30 holds its meeting. Bible study is held in the Student Union at 9 p.m. on Sundays.

CSF's other activities include sponsoring a child in a foreign country, raising funds for the Summer Missions program, and co-sponsoring the Thanksgiving dinner.

Starting this Tuesday, after the regular meeting, CSF plans to begin making a weekly trip to the Brian Center, a rest home. Jones says, "Basically, we just want to be there for people who need friends."

Where are you going for Thanksgiving?

What are your plans for Thanksgiving Holiday?

"I'm going to the beach!"

Wendy Taylor, sophomore
Jupiter, FL

"I'm going to get a tan, pig out, relax, and get away from this cold weather."

Lisa Taylor, sophomore
Cocoa Beach, FL

"I'm going home for an interview."

Chris Peterson, sophomore
Charlotte, NC

"I'm going home for a bunch of doctor appointments. That'll be fun."

Paula Bruce, freshman
Spartanburg, SC

It's a hit! Enthusiastic audiences have been both entertained and moved by the musical, "Cabaret," the fall musical produced by the BC Drama Dept. and directed by Sam Cope. The Barn Theater was sold out for the last weekend's performance. (BC photo by Jock Lauterer)