

Peanut's pix . . .

Place your bets . . .

by Juan Kincaid

Ladies and gentlemen, boys and girls, open your hearts and lend me your ears. Welcome to the wonderful world of Peanuts Pix and Predictions.

For the next couple of months I will be sharing my knowledge with you on the subject of professional and college sports.

I will be giving my expert opinions and sarcasm on various sports games ranging from tennis to football to basketball.

I will be giving my strong predictions on the teams that will and will not win. With my predictions in your hand, you can't go wrong in Vegas.

My first prediction of the new year is on Super Bowl XXII.

This classic match-up between the Denver Broncos of the AFC and the Washington Redskins of the NFC promises to be a great game for both the fan and gambler alike.

Denver has played the better football of the two in these last few weeks while the Redskins have struggled in beating Chicago and Minnesota. Also, Denver, who has had home field advantage all through the playoffs, has had a relatively easy time with their opponents. Denver advanced to the Super Bowl with impressive wins over Houston and Cleveland in a heart-stopper.

It's a proven fact that Denver's quarterback, John Elway, is having better success with the passing game compared to the strong-armed Doug Williams of Washington.

But defense will prove to be the impact on this year's Super Bowl.

Two weeks ago Washington sacked Minnesota's QB eight times in the NFC Championship Game and have allowed only 27 points in two playoff games. These stats seem to have given a defensive edge to the Redskins.

But like always, where there's a will there's a way. An Elway. Elway will pull his team through by at least a touch down and walk off the field as this year's Super Bowl champs.

This is the way I see it, so go and put your money on me. I'm your best bet.

P.'nuts Pix and Predictions
Denver over Washington 24-17
Denver Super Bowl XXII Champs

BC Men host Brevard College Classic

by Juan Kincaid

The Brevard College Classic tips off Friday, Jan. 29, with four teams playing in a round robin tournament.

But unlike a tournament, trophies will not be given to the winner, but an all classic team will be selected.

Teams participating in this year's classic include: UNC CH, King's College, and Lenoir Community College.

Brevard will open their play first against the UNC-JV team followed by the Kings College—Lenoir CC game.

The tournament will last until Saturday, Jan. 30.

After the tournament, BC will be on the road against Montreat-Anderson on Feb. 1 and Lees McRae on Feb. 3.

The women's cross country team, left to right, Kelli George, Marjorie Hawk, Janice Wilder, Jill Baldwin, Alice Gaines and Michelle Lambert.

Brevard runners expect a great indoor track season

They're off and running again. Those championship runners from Brevard College haven't had much time to cool their heels after winning the National Junior College Athletic association cross country crown in November.

Now they're competing in the indoor track season which opened Saturday with the Eastman Invitational meet in Johnson City, Tenn.

The indoor season culminates with the nationals in Detroit, March 11-12.

Then the thinclads hit the spring outdoor track season that begins with the Georgia Relays in Athens on March 19 and ends with the NJCAA Outdoor Championships in Odessa, Texas, May 19-20.

The Middle distance (800 meters to 1 mile) men should be led by Allen Brooks, John Hoback and Nick Embrey, according to Coach Dave Rinker. The men's distance (2-3 miles) leaders should be Jeff Pajak, Scott Dvorak and Brad Dodson.

For the Lady Tornados, Coach Rinker is looking to middle distance leaders Alice Gaines, Jill Baldwin, Michelle Lambert and Janice Wilder. The distance runners will be led by Kelli George and Marjorie Hawk.

The BC men's indoor track team.

(Biar Orrell photo)