College hoops

by Juan Kincaid

So what if I was wrong about the Super Bowl Pick. It was a first-time pick and now I'm warmed up for College Basketball.

Yes, it's College Basketball season again and I know that you gamblers will be getting out the pens and money to place your bets. So when you go to the betting table, take these picks with you and bet your wallet dry. You can't lose. Here are just a few pix.

Spartanburg-Methodist College
At Brevard College — 2/17

"Hey, we're home and home is where we should stay." This is how fans react to the BC Mens Basketball team. BC has had a terrible time on the road. But Brevard's fan support will bury Spartanburg in the ground while the BC dunk show will close the bid.

Morristown at Brevard College — 2/20

Say what you want, the last time these two teams met it wasn't worth the cost of admission for the Brevard fan. Morristown literally blew us out in their small tupperware shaped gym. But it's time to show who the real boys are. BC will return the favor and treat the fans to a delightful show of dominance over an opponent.

WCJCC Tournament 2/25-27

As the season comes to an end, the conference tournament approaches as in expectation to who will be this year's conference champ.

This year's favorite is North Greenville, but they will be tested by Brevard College, Lees-McRae and Anderson College. This year's conference tournament will be an exciting one for the fan to watch. The tournament has yet to find a location. It will be announced at a later date.

Wake Forest at

UNC-Chapel Hill — 2/17

The first time these two teams met Wake Forest pulled off probably the biggest upset in their team's history. But don't expect a repeat of that game. The Tarheels are playing in their own Dean Dome and J.R. Reed along with Jeff Lebo will make this a laugh.

P-Nuts Pix: UNC by 10

N.C. State at Clemson — 2/18

Even though they're playing at Clemson, State has the obvious advantage, better low post men. Charles Shackelford along with Chucky Brown will rule the boards and Vinny Del Negro will be on from three point range. Not taking anything away from Clemson's dynamic duo, Crayson Marshall (all-time ACC Assist leader) and Elden Campbell, but State will shut them down. It'll be close but State will be victorious.

P-Nuts Pix: State by five

Virginia at Duke — 2/17

After an impressive win over UNC, Virginia should be a cake walk for the Blue Devils. With four returning starters for last year's line up, it's no wonder why Duke is picked to win the ACC, and besides, they're playing Virginia at home where Duke is virtually unstoppable. Duke hands down.

P-Nuts Pix: Duke by 15
Arizona at UCLA — 2/18

Arizona coach Lute Olson has brought his Arizona Wildcats team into the national spotlights with impressive wins and a number one ranking. They also have four returning starters led by junior Sean Elliot; 19.3 ppg, 6.0 rpg. The UCLA Bruins will be led by the highly talented Pooh Richardson. He alone will have to slap the high scoring Wildcat attack. Is this possible, I don't think so. Not even the UCLA fan can keep this from becoming a massacre.

P-Nuts Pix: Arizona by 12
Florida at Mississippi — 2/17

The Mississippi Rebels would probably be better off going on a boat ride down the Mississippi River than to play against the Gators. This is obviously a mistake in the Rebel schedule. This game isn't even worth elaborating on, but I thought the Florida students would enjoy hearing about it. This game will be more of a dunking contest than a basketball game.

P-Nuts Pix: Florida by Alot
South Carolina at Cincinnati — 2/18

Sorry Cincinnati fans but this isn't even worth watching on T.V. A victory over the Gamecocks of South Carolina will be much harder than to be expected. The Gamecocks return their leading scorer Terry Dozier 17.0 ppg/15.4 rpg and he alone should turn this into a relatively easy game for the Gamecocks.

Other Games:

St. Johns Univ at Syracuse — 2/17

Syracuse's Rony Seikaly and Sherman Douglass should dominate.

P-Nut's Pix: Syracuse by 10

Kentucky at Univ. of Tennessee — 2/17

Kentucky's Rex Chapman and Ed Davender will give the Tennessee defense some problems.

P-Nuts Pix: Kentucky by 12

Pittsburg at Providence — 2/16

Pitt's Charles Smith, Demetrius Gore and Jerome Lane will have a field day.

P-Nuts Pix: Pitt by 15

Michigan St. at Indiana — 2/18

No way Bobby Knight would lose in Indiana.

Maryland at Georgia Tech — 2/17

Promises to be a thriller!

Upset of the Week

Missouri at Iowa St — 2/17

This is a great match-up between two surprise teams in the Big Eight. Or Missouri's side there is Derrick Chievous, 24.1 ppg/8.6 rpg. And on the down State side there is a man by the name of Jeff Grayer 22.4 ppg/7.0 rpg. He will have to lead his down State Cyclones over the Tigers in a dramatic comeback fashion. Missouri will lead most of the game but Iowa St. will walk off victorious.

Well, this is the way I see it, so put your money on me, 'cause I'm your best bet.

BC women chalk up victories

The women end their regular season with two home games on Feb. 17 and 20.

On Saturday, Feb. 6, the number one team in the region, North Greenville, defeated the ladies 77-62. BC's women made a big improvement from the last time they played the Mounties. There was a 37 point margin the first time the Tornadoes went up against them. Shelley Ivey was the high scorer with 21 points and Alison Stocks had 13.

Louisburg came to BC on Friday, Feb. 5, where they defeated the Lady Tornadoes 75-60. At halftime Louisburg was only ahead 30-29. But the Ladies were outscored in the second half. Satina Waites was the high scorer with 14 points and Tonja Barksdale put in 12 points and pulled down eight rebounds.

BC women netters defend conference crown

by Kenny Monteith

With a tough schedule of four-year colleges including nationally-ranked Peace College, the Brevard college women's tennis team is looking to improve their conference championship record of 6-3.

Returning from the championship team is the number two seed, Amy Mullins of Brevard, N.C. Newcomers include freshmen Selena Lauterer of Asheville, N.C. and Kim Sowell of North Myrtle Beach, S.C. All three players are on tennis scholarships.

"With these three, we should do fairly well," said tennis coach Jane Long. "Although right now it is too early to see how the others hit because of the cold." Long also said Missy McCranie has been working hard in the offseason to improve her game.

Among the conference teams, Lees-McRae and Anderson, Long expects both teams to be tough.

BC runners doing well in track meets

by Joseph Brooks

The BC runners participated in the three-mile indoor tournament Jan. 23 at Johnson City, Tenn.

Brad Dodson and Jeff Pajak of BC qualified for the nationals there.

The 29th and the 30th were also challenging days for the BC girls track team.

The BC girls took part in the Marriott tournament at the Virginia Tech, where Alice Gaines qualified for the nationals.

Both teams are expected to participate in the Tiger tournament at Clemson next weekend.

Coach Dave Rinker said, "As far as training and racing are concerns, we are right on schedule."

on Jan. 27. The final score was 68-55. Ivey had 26 points, 10 rebounds, nine steals and four assists. The Ladies outrebounded Montreat 47-24. Angie Ellis, Tonja Barksdale, and Jill Hair pulled down a total of 33 rebounds.

A much deserved victory for the women came when Warren-Wilson came to BC. The women topped Warren-Wilson 77-45, Jan. 25. BC had the whole game, with Ivey scoring 22 points, while Barksdale and Stephanie "Honkie" Hoback pumping in a total of 29 points. Jill Hair, 5'4" guard, and Barksdale both pulled down 12 rebounds, while Hoback and Ivey both had 10.

Friday, Jan. 22, BC hosted Peace College. The Lady Tornadoes were defeated 74-57. Ivey had the high score of 20 points while Waites added 15. The next night, Saturday, the women traveled to Spartanburg Methodist College where they were beaten 73-67. At the end of the first half, the Tornadoes were ahead 34-29. But Spartanburg outscored BC by 11 points on the second half which led them to a victory.

The Lady Tornadoes had a conference match-up with Lees-McRae on Jan. 18 at the Boshamer Gym. Although the women were down by a mere four points at half time, the Lady Bobcats topped BC 80-57. Ivey, Barksdale, and Stocks combined for a total of 44 points.

Indoor soccer a big winter sport at BC

by Kim Belanger

Indoor soccer has become an integral part of Brevard College's soccer program.

Dave Taylor, who heads both the men and the women in this club sport, says that most of the regular players get involved to improve their skills.

Soccer players aren't exclusive to this club sport; indoor soccer is open to anyone.

Indoor differs from intercollegiate soccer in many areas. One noticeable difference is the amount of players on each team. Compared to the standard 11 per team, indoor soccer uses five players per side. Other rule changes include no off-sides and no out of bounds. These rules account for the constant action and intensity of the game.

Tournaments consisting of 16 to 20 teams play Rough Robin single elimination which lasts anywhere from one to two days. The individual games last 24 minutes because of the fast play involved. The tournament host basically has his own say in the rule and guidelines area. This individuality makes each tournament unique though some general ground rules are set.

Last year, Taylor was satisfied with the four second place wins Brevard received. "We beat some big schools," he said.

This year BC goes up against UNC-Asheville and Maryville in Tennessee on Feb. 6. One team will travel to each tournament. The tournament will consist of 20 teams. Brevard placed second last year at this event.

On Feb. 12-13, both the teams and the women will compete against Warren-Wilson; another tournament which brought a second place finish for the BC men's team.

The women will go on to play Erskine Feb. 27 and play an outdoor tournament at Coker College on April 9.

Both teams practice 3 days a week for approximately an hour to an hour and a half.
