

What's happening

this weekend

Sports, entertainment, special events scheduled at Brevard College for the weekend of Feb. 16-18, according to the official BC Campus Events Schedule

Friday, Feb. 16

Game: Win, Lose or Draw -- Jones Lobby, 7-10 p.m.

Sports: Men's Basketball here. BC vs. Louisburg, 7:30 p.m. Boshamer Gym.

Saturday, Feb. 17

Sports: Women's Basketball. BC vs. Truett-McConnell, away, Cleveland, Ga., 2 p.m.

Men's Basketball. BC vs. Chowan, here, 7:30 p.m., Boshamer Gym.

Indoor Soccer Tournament, here, Auxillary Gym, 9 a.m.-9 p.m.

Indoor Track: Pizza Hut Invitational, away, Blacksburg, Va. 10 a.m.

Intramurals: Moonlight Bowling, 11 p.m.-1:30 a.m. $3. Pisgah Lanes. Watch for posters around campus for details.

Sunday, Feb. 18

Guest Recital: the Joiner Duo, violin and viola. Dunham Auditorium, 4 p.m., free.

Video: "Rainman" Taylor Lobby, 7-9 p.m.

College announces new policy on public drunkenness

The Brevard College Office of Student Affairs is in the process of formulating a new policy regarding students who are found to be publicly intoxicated on the BC campus.

Although details are still being worked out, Dean of Student Affairs Norm Witek says the action is being undertaken "to ensure the safety of the students and the campus at large, and to comply with state regulations."

According to Witek, the gist of the new policy will be this: that students apprehended on campus publicly drunk will be tested with a breathalyzer, and if found to be legally drunk, will be turned over to the local police. Also, their parents will be notified.

As soon as the new policy is completed, students will be notified as to the full details.

Director of Public Information Jock Lauterer adds, "In light of the tragic fatal alcohol-related accidents that have been occurred at Clemson and USC this past school year, this College is taking a proactive stance in the matter of public alcohol abuse; we just don't want to see that kind of thing happen at Brevard College."

BC News Bureau

When BC student Burney Mack became concerned because the campus flagpole was standing empty for lack of a flag, the former Eagle Scout solved the problem swiftly by himself. It took just one call to the local Elks Club to get a flag donated. Here, Burney, along with Thomas Smith, raise Old Glory. Sometimes they even bring along a cassette tape recording of a bugle call playing "tattoo," the traditional bugle call for flag raising.

Battle of the Bands coming Feb. 23

by Janet Lutz
Clarion Reporter

The battle is about to begin. A battle that uses voices, guitars, and drums instead of the usual artillery. The battle is the Battle of the Bands that will be held Friday, Feb. 23, at the Dunham Auditorium at 7 p.m.

"A competition with rock-n-roll as the chosen weapon," says Jeff Battle, Student Activities Director.

Local and on-campus bands may participate but must sign a BC entertainment rider and conform to the BC entertainment standard. There will be an entry fee and the prize for the winner will be $250. The last day to enter is February 16. "The more the merrier and may the best man win," says Battle.

So far the "battlefield" is crowded. Here's who's signed up as of Feb. 7: C.O.A., the Stand, Timothy Weber and Dave Peterson, the Trees, Euphoria, and China White.

BC to DC

by Lin Redmond
Clarion Assistant Editor

Project Inside-Out Coordinator Sybil Dodson is organizing a spring break work-trip to Washington, D.C. She's calling it "BC to DC."

BC student volunteers chosen for the trip will leave Greenville on Friday, March 9, and travel on Amtrak to D.C. They will stay in a youth hostel or one of the church-related dormitories set up to house the influx of volunteers regularly received by the area.

Similar to last spring's work-trip to Durango, Mexico, where a student and faculty service group assisted a church in the refurbishing of an old gym, the D.C. group will serve in a variety of inner-city projects.

In conjunction with the Church of the Saviour, and possibly with an organization known as the Committee for Creative Non-Violence, the team will assist the homeless at food centers, children in an after-school program, and become involved in what Dodson refers to as "other needs and justice issues related to the inner-city."

The area in which the students will stay is near 14th Street, which extends behind The White House and is in the midst of the most troubled part of the city. Dodson, who has been involved in this type of work for 30 years, is happy about the location's proximity to troubled areas and the contact it will bring. She says, "When you talk with people who are homeless, these people who are faceless and nameless become real, and the issues become real."

Dodson is also pleased about the variety of situations the students will be exposed to during their work. "We'll see at least three different ways of approaching problems -- churches, organizations, indifference, etc."

According to Dodson, the experiences of a work-trip allow those involved to make better political decisions. "Some people say, 'Why do I have to know these things?' But if you vote," she reminds, "you elect the people who make the rules that affect all of us and unless you are aware of the complexity of the issues and how these rules affect others...there are so many myths that surround groups of people we are not intimate with."

Dodson, who has been a catalyst in campus community service activity, is definite when asked about the role of service in college life. She says, "I just feel so strongly that a total education needs to include an awareness of life, and so often we just know about that aspect we're most closely related to -- our friends, our family, etc. The world is so much broader than our immediate little circle."

For those interested, more information on the trip to Washington,

D.C., may be obtained from Sybil Dodson, RD West Beam (apartment), 883-8654, or in MG 236 (office), 883-8292 ext. 226.

Take heart— there's plenty to do on Valentine's Day

by Sharon Young
Clarion Reporter

Cupid's arrows are aimed right at you! February 14, Valentine's Day, is just around the corner. Do you have any plans?

Here's a roundup of everything going on here at BC this Wednesday.

There's something going on in Rutherford Room of the cafeteria... it's a marathon -- a Kissing Marathon.

All a girl needs is a guy -- or visa versa. The Marathon will start around 5:30 p.m. and is expected to last a couple of hours. Couples will sit across from one another, lean up and kiss each other, then sit back down. They will repeat the process until one couple remains.

Prizes will be awarded to the top three finishers. Grand prize is a large pizza, second prize is a medium pizza and third prize is Chapstick

The fun doesn't stop with the Kissing Marathon. Starting at 9 p.m. and going until 1 a.m. there will be a Sweethearts Dance in the Auxiliary Gym.

Says Student Activities Director Jeff Battle, "It's a dance with romance."

Live entertainment will be provided by the band "COA" which will play a variety of music, including plenty of slow songs for couples.

COA, a local band, has been playing together for a while, with appearances at BC and in area night clubs.

And don't worry if you don't have a date. One can come stag. Be sure to wear your best, since the dance is semi-formal.

Another event taking place on Valentine's Day is sponsored by the BC's Project Inside-Out and the College's Service Coordinator, Sybil Dodson. Parents of BC students have been offered the opportunity of sending special Valentine's greetings to their loved ones using "Buckets of Love," a utility pail filled with an assortment of goodies including a stuffed toy and a Valentine balloon.

All proceeds from the sale of these "Buckets of Love" go to Project Inside-Out to assist in sending the BC work team to Washington, NC. during this coming Spring Break.