

CAMPUS LIFE

New addition made to dining at BC

Jeremey Montgomery
Clarion Staff Writer

During the first week of March, Jerry Jackson, Head of Food Service, decided it was time to make a change in the food being served at Brevard College. The Food Service Staff decided that the idea of having genuine Subway sandwiches available in the Student Union would be a great idea.

The students were excited to hear about the upcoming Subway planned for the campus, until everyone found out the cost of the sandwiches. The ideal plan was to sell six-inch subs for $3. Although some students complain about the food at Brevard College, not everyone has $3 to pay for lunch everyday.

The only disadvantage to this plan of having Subway sandwiches is that students were unable to use their meal cards to pay for some of them. In the Student Union, student ID cards are granted $2.50 worth of credit.

Unfortunately, it was less than the school was paying for the sandwiches; therefore, cash had to be paid to cover food costs. If students had used their meal cards, Brevard food services would have lost about 50 %, according to Jackson.

Over a period of a week, only six subs were sold. It was too expensive to have all the subs prepared if no one was buying them. Food cost was increasing, so Jackson decided to do away with the plan.

Although unsuccessful with having Subway at Brevard, Food Services came up with a new plan. The staff decided to make their own subs to be served in the Student Union. Do not hesitate to try a sandwich because these are not ordinary subs. Jackson said, "We are going to try to make these subs as close to Subway as possible." The bread used for these subs is home-made, prepared by the Food Services staff. These subs are served in the Student Union, and students will have the opportunity to use their meal cards.

The staff plans to start off with three selections of subs: tuna, cold-cut combo, and turkey. Jackson stated, "Any ideas that students might have about this, I am willing to try." If students and staff work together, food at Brevard would more than likely become better.

A survey will soon be taken to receive input concerning opinions and ideas. Hopefully, these ideas will be considered carefully and will help change for better results.

Delta Pi Chapter hosts BRCC in recent spelling competition

Jennifer DeSaegher
Clarion Staff Writer

On Thursday, March 23, Delta Pi, the Brevard College chapter of Phi Theta Kappa, took part in its first competitive team spelling bee. Competition was high as the Blue Ridge Community College Phi Theta Kappa chapter served as Brevard's opponents.

The competition, called "The Battle of the Brains", was exciting as Allen Sher, a member of the Hendersonville Kiwanis Club, served as an animating facilitator. Throughout the evening, Mr. Sher entertained the contestants and audience with humorous anecdotes from previous spelling bees he has conducted.

Participants were given spelling lists weeks before the competition so that participants could polish their spelling skills for the big event. Spelling words ranged from simple words such as "island" to more difficult words such as "Rheumatism." If a contestant was not able to understand the full meaning of a word, Mr. Sher gave an illustration using the word in a sentence.

At the end of each round of intense spelling, a bonus word, not included on the list, was given to one contestant from each team.

Out of twelve rounds of competition, only two were completed, giving Blue Ridge the edge. At the end of the night, Blue Ridge Community College had come up with a victory over Brevard with the final score of 170-166. Both teams are to be commended for a job well done.

The Brevard participants were Kim Button, Amy Cuccia, Bobbie Jo Simmons, Mindy Ruch, Kerri Sorkin, Linda Epperson, and Andy Collins.

Participants in the recent spelling bee from BC against Blue Ridge Community College were (from left to right): Allen Sher, Conductor; Kim Button, Amy Cuccia, Bobbie Jo Simmons, Mindy Ruch, Kerri Sorkin, and Linda Epperson.

New summer session is planned for '95

Special to the Clarion
from the B.C. News Bureau

Brevard College will offer two educational opportunities this summer for college students who need additional credit hours and high school students who demonstrate a readiness to perform at the collegiate level. May Term '95, added this year to offer students another opportunity for credit hours, will run from May 14 through June 2. The 1995 Brevard College Summer Session of classes will open on June 18 and will run through July 21.

Brevard College offers an ideal location for summer learning in a cool and relaxed mountain atmosphere, and the May and summer curricula offer a variety of educational, recreational, cultural and spiritual activities. Students enrolled at another college must obtain the signature of their dean or registrar granting permission to take the courses at Brevard College; students currently enrolled at Brevard College may attend either session if they are in good standing or if they have the permission of the Vice-President for Academic Affairs. Prospective freshmen must apply through the Brevard College Office of Admissions and will be evaluated based on their level of achievement in high school and their SAT or ACT scores. All students must have complete immunization and health records on file with Brevard College before noon on May 18 (for May Term '95) or before noon on June 9 (for Summer Session).

The maximum course load for May Term '95 is four semester hours, including physical education. Courses projected include art, music, religion, political science and psychology. The maximum load of courses for the Summer Session is eight semester hours, not including physical education. In addition to a comprehensive slate of liberal arts courses, the Brevard College

Summer Session also offers developmental courses designed to give special attention to students' needs in personal development, grammar, composition and mathematics while encouraging self-confidence and self-discipline.

For more information on costs, boarding or eligibility, or to apply for the May Term '95 or the 1995 Summer Session, contact the Brevard College Office of Admissions at (704) 884-8300, or write: Dean of Admissions, Brevard College, 400 N. Broad St., Brevard, NC 28712.