Letter to the Editor

I find myself shocked and dismayed to hear that the Column "Ask Tex" will continue to befoul our campus newspaper. To those of us who look to media outlets for important news about our world, our nation, our community and our college this column causes us to wonder why?

Why must this paper degrade the intelligence of this campus with such a demeaning and unnecessary piece? I have viewed issues from the past years of The Clarion and find Tex's responses to such things as the size of his truck and the opposite sex, to be an insult to everyone who has come to this College for an education.

If I wanted to read the stereotypical pandering to the lowest common denominator drivel, then I would buy a tabloid paper where I would know that the views expressed were at least false. Headlines along the vein of Elvis's lovechild with an Alien are easier to relate to than the constant stream chauvinistic nonsense that you seem to deem worthy for this paper.

I have to ask, does this paper wish to be a reputable media source for this institution or does it wish to be portrayed as a high school publication that someone has produced in their basement for the entertainment of their friends?

We must come up with other ways to bring in readers to The Clarion; keeping "Ask Tex" in order to do this will not only hurt the reputation of our college but will show a lack of intelligence and taste within what should be the "Academic Elite" of this institution.
