Security Report

April 16. A student sold a psychology book to the bookstore which was determined to have been stolen. The student who tried to sell the book admitted to stealing it. The student's dorm room was searched and other reportedly stolen items were found including a Swiss Gear backpack. The student and the student's roommate reportedly claim to be unaware of how they came into possession of the backpack. Other contraband items found in the dorm included a can of Bud Light, a digital scale, and a bag containing marijuana residue. The matter has been turned over to Campus Life.

April 17. Security received complaints that a Jones residence hall smelled like feces. A student was asked to remove a dog from their room, which had defecated on the floor.

April 17. Security was informed that someone was keeping a pellet gun in their Beam dorm room. The pellet gun was confiscated by security.

April 18. Security searched a dorm room in response to reports marijuana odor. Empty bottles of vodka and rum were the only contraband discovered. The matter has been turned over to Campus Life.

April 18. An X-Box game and a DVD was reportedly stolen from a Beam dorm room. No suspects have been identified yet.

April 20. An I-Pod and a locked box containing $20 and a Social Security card were reported stolen from a Beam dorm room.

April 22. Around a hundred DVDs and an I-Pod were reported stolen from a Beam dorm room. No suspects have been identified yet.

When to send:

Invitation etiquette

by Katie Berube
Business Manager

Announcements usually include two envelopes. The outer envelope, with the gummed flap, is the mailing envelope. It should be addressed as legibly as you can with black or blue ink. Avoid using abbreviations in the mailing address.

The inner envelope, without the gummed flap, holds the announcement. Address it informally.

If children are included with the announcement, their names should only appear on the inner envelope.

Place the announcement in the smaller envelope, folded edge inserted first, with the announcement front facing the flap. You may fasten the flap using a foil etiquette seal, or leave it unsealed

Insert the inner envelope into the mailing envelope with its flap facing the mailing address side.

Send your announcements via first class mail ten days to two weeks prior to the ceremony.
