

Women's soccer team closes out season in St. Augustine tournament

The Brevard College Women's soccer team traveled to St. Augustine Florida to compete in a tournament comprised of other teams which, like Brevard College, are ineligible to participate in their conference tournaments due to the waiting period which is put on teams transferring into a different conference. The teams at the tournament, other than our Lady Tornados, were Houston Baptist College, Palm Beach Atlantic College, the host team Flagler College. Each team played two games and the Tornados had the privilege of playing Houston Baptist first followed by Flagler. The first game gave the ladies a sour 7-1 loss and left them with a determination to prove themselves in the next match. Going into the second game the Tornados held the Flagler Saints to a slim 1-0 lead going into the second half and fought to the end playing both the other team and the officials coming out with a 4-0 loss. The Lady Tornados ended their season strong and represented Brevard College well on their trip to St. Augustine. The ladies also had a taste of the Florida culture while on their trip sampling the exquisite cuisine and the history of the oldest city in the nation.

Coach Mascaro's comments:

I would like to thank all our seniors for all their effort, support and leadership throughout the season. Each of them were valuable assets to our team and will be sorely missed. We as a team wish them all the best for future endeavors.
