

American Hero

Beer and hunting have always gone together. Unfortunately though, the old shiny beer cans could alert the deer, elk, fox, or human that you are hunting to your presence. The failure of old beer cans to be inconspicuous while out in the woods has led many red blooded Americans into an unnecessary moral dilemma, drink beer or hunt? This is why Anheuser-Busch Brewing Company, inventor of the camo beer can, is this week's American Hero. Thanks to them we can now combine the two great American pastimes, getting wrecked and shooting stuff. Just make sure your can doesn't blend in so well to your surroundings that you lose it before you finish the beer.

SIGN OF THE TIMES

I guess this sign is technically correct, if you believe in a fire and brimstone version of Hell. To us at The Clarion, though it is incorrect, as we believe Hell is more personalized. It is a place where the things you hate the most are continuously surrounding you. In our Hell, this sign is everywhere.
