Chad Campbell of Brevard College received the third annual North Carolina Campus Compact Community Impact Student Award during the Compact's Student Conference held at High Point University Saturday, November 8. Twenty-seven college students across the state received the award for making significant, innovative contributions to their campus' efforts to address local community needs.

State Senator Vernon Malone of Wake County and the Compact's

Executive Director, Dr. Lisa Keyne, presented the award to Campbell before an audience of more than 250 college students and guests representing 33 higher education institutions. President of High Point University, Dr. Nido Qubein, initiated the ceremony, emphasizing the conference's theme, "The Power is Yours."

Campbell, a senior majoring in Environmental Science, is passionate about environmental issues, particularly sustainability issues. He directly impacted the campus through establishing and operating a campus vegetable garden. In addition, Campbell volunteered a substantial amount of his time and money designing and creating what will soon be the campus rain/flower garden. He helped convert the largely disparate collection of small student environmental clubs into the better organized "BC GREENS" club, and is currently serving as president.

North Carolina Campus Compact is a statewide coalition of higher education presidents and chancellors established to encourage and support campus engagement in the community. For more information, contact Jamarl Clark at (336) 278-7194.

More coaching changes ahead for BC athletics

by Johnny "Stats" Lange and Joseph Chilton

The Brevard College athletic department confirmed Tuesday that women's head soccer coach Liz Stojetz will not have her contract extended after it expires this year.

The athletic department will not release information as to why Stojetz will not have her contract renewed.

"As always, the institution does not comment on personnel changes and therefore would not be able to discuss specifics," Athletic Director Kim Pate said when reached for comment on Wednesday.

Coach Stojetz compiled a career record of 21-64-5 over 5 years at Brevard.

Prior to coming to Brevard, Coach Stojetz was an assistant coach at University of South Carolina Upstate in Spartanburg, South Carolina. During her final season at Brevard, the Tornados finished with a record 6-12-1,

Women's soccer coach Liz Stojetz will not be returning to coach at BC next season going 0-8 in the inaugural South Atlantic Conference campaign for the team.

Men's head soccer coach Juan Mascaro has been named interim head coach for the women's team. Assistant Coach Rebekah Mumm will be handling the day-to-day operations while the search for a new coach continues.

According to Pate, the school is hoping to have a new coach put into place by early spring.

SAAC to host Kids' Night Out

Student Athlete Advisory Committee (SAAC) will be hosting KIDS NIGHT OUT on Friday, November 21st, from 7:00PM until 10:00PM in Boshamer Gym. Parents who would want a night out from their kids should bring their kids, who would probably want a night out from their parents, as well, to this event. 5-13 years old, for $10 per kid, will have a chance to participate in different activities with our student-athletes. Refreshments and snacks will be provided for all participants, as well.

KIDS NIGHT OUT will serve as one of the SAAC fundraisings for the year and half of the money raised will go to a Make-A-Wish Foundation, while other half will go to SAAC for leadership development.
