You know a student has done something right when they have been given their own office and had a position created for them.

"I have been a RA, Assistant Community Director and then this year I am the Senior Community Director," said Cole Altizer, a graduating senior. "My role is all things housing. I have gotten to work with the RAs and CDs very closely this year and have served many roles in supporting them and the wonderful work they do in the residence halls."

The Senior Community Director's job is new, as Altizer is the first person to hold the position. The CDs are responsible for leading the Campus Life student leadership, and focus on planning, implementing, and evaluating plans and policies for students within the residence halls.

The quality of the Campus Life student leaders can be measured by the time Altizer has put into his line of work, who strive to build and integrative community for all students.

In addition to supervising the CDs and RAs, Altizer has focused on creating his own line of courses as an Integrated Studies major.

"I've gotten to take whatever I wanted. I took a lot of English classes, religion classes and Spanish," said Altizer.

Altizer has also played Tennis for BC, served on multiple committees and was part of BC's trip to Costa Rica.

The Senior Community Director position is referred to by other students as a full time job. Altizer has managed to balance his time between being a full time senior student, a top tier student leader among other student leaders, and a man looking for his next challenge beyond undergraduate school.

"I am going to go to Graduate School. I am still not sure where but I've narrowed it down to Clemson and Mississippi State University. I am going to go to Graduate school for 'Student Affairs,' and I want to continue to work at Colleges, especially Residence Life," said Altizer.

"My time at Brevard has been wonderful. I have really loved all of the experiences I've had and I feel like I've gotten a lot of cool experiences (working for Campus Life, playing tennis, serving on committees, going to Costa Rica as well as creating my own major as an Integrated Studies)," Altizer fondly stated about his time at BC.
