

Are you planning to attend graduate school next academic year?

GRE discounts, practice tests available to BC students

Now is the time to begin preparing to take the Graduate Record Examinations (GRE)! The GRE General Test is required by most graduate schools for admission. To ensure your scores are received by the deadline for the school of your choice, please review the timeline listed below in the chart.

On Aug. 1, 2011, the GRE revised General Test was implemented. The GRE revised General Test has some key changes that will impact how you prepare for the test, how you take the test, and when you can expect your test scores to be sent to the institutions to which you are applying. The test will still consist of 3 sections - Verbal Reasoning, Quantitative Reasoning and Analytical Writing.

There is an opportunity to save 50% on the test fee if you take the test before Sept. 30, 2011. That means it will cost you $80.00 rather than the $160.00 normal fee. For more information about the revised test, including how to register for the test and download free software to help you prepare please visit www.ets.org or stop by the Office for Career Exploration & Development for more information.

The Office for Career Exploration and Development will also host two sessions on Graduate School Preparation on Sept. 12 and Oct. 10 at 6:00 P.M. in MG 138 which will include more information about the GRE as well as other graduate school information.

Clubs kick off fall semester

By Patrick G. Veilleux
Managing Editor

Brevard College's Clubs are off to a productive start in the Fall Semester. On Monday, the SGA-approved clubs met in the Reserve Dining Room in Myers to showcase their organizations and recruit from the student body.

Psychology Club president Karen Howell was pleased with the turnout and numbers recruited at the expo. "If everyone who signed up shows at the meeting, then we will double our membership, we did really well," she said.

Most booths at the Expo had candy to offer, but in the case of Mama's Kitchen, members jovially offered cornbread and a peach spread to students as they walked by. This is a simple preview of the great food that the club will prepare on campus—food that BC students will be able to partake in if they are attentive.

Leslie Hylton offered surveys from the Intramurals kiosk, giving students a chance to say what kind of activities they wanted to see around campus throughout the year.

Choices included video game events, kickball, dodge ball, ultimate frisbee, disc golf, 3 on 3 basketball, and more.

Many ambitions expand beyond the expo. Both Psychology Club and the BC Pastimes club are collaborating to turn Dunham into an insane asylum for Halloween this semester. Both have ambitions to bring public speakers to the college to give speeches to the student body in the future.

"We have big plans for this semester"

Pastimes president Melissa Sullebarger

Some of these plans are as simple as arranging a road trip to the Native American Reservation at Cherokee, N.C. in Pastimes case. Psych Club, however, is arranging a showing of "Silence of the Lambs" for BC students. On the other hand some Psych Club plans are as complex as setting up fundraising activities with the National Alliance on Mental Illness. The Pastimes Club also wants to set up a public event for students where they can fire pumpkins from a trebuchet. That's right, shoot giant pumpkins out of a catapult!

Pastimes president Melissa Sullebarger stated, "We have big plans for this semester, the trebuchet being one of them. It's ambitious, but possible."

Sullebarger also encourages the campus to take part in other public events in the future such as the planned historical reenactments, or learning from the elusive Dr. Bauslaugh about what he did on his sabbatical over the past year. Pastimes Club welcomes people to attend its meetings at 6 p.m. every Thursday in the MG 203 Lounge.

Howell also invites the campus to work with the Psych Club on National Coming Out day, an international civil service day devoted to encouraging openness among the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender community. Psych Club will offer support to the LGBT community and encourage openness and acceptance on the BC campus. Psych Club meets every Thursday at 8 p.m. in MG 224.
