

Campus Garden

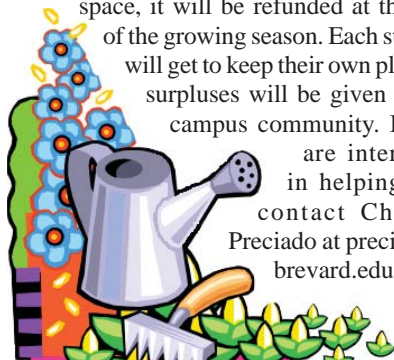

By Sarah Bowers
Staff Writer

The campus garden is located behind the cafeteria. Chelsea Preciado wants to make this space flourish. As garden manager, Preciado's job is to till the soil, pull the weeds, and separate the individual plots. "This is one of my goals upon taking over the project. I want the students and faculty to know about having it," said Preciado.

There are faculty members and a few students working in the garden, but Preciado wants more student involvement. She also wants the garden to tie into Brevard's role of sustainability and use it as a space to bring students together.

She has ideas for a gazebo and would like to ask art students to build sculptures for it. "I know that managing this land will be quite a lot of work and if anyone likes to get down and dirty in the soil just let me know," Preciado said. They are going to plant fall vegetables such as spinach, kale, mustard greens, lettuce, arugula, cabbage, carrots and broccoli.

There is a ten dollar deposit to ensure a space, it will be refunded at the end of the growing season. Each student will get to keep their own plot and surpluses will be given to the campus community. If you are interested in helping out, contact Chelsea Preciado at preciacln@brevard.edu.
