

Moogfest returns to Asheville

By Park Baker
Editor in Chief

The hosts of Moogfest have outdone themselves this year. TV on the Radio, Moby, The Flaming Lips and Passion Pit are but a few of the bands selected to commemorate Bob Moog and his musical legacy. The festival will over run Asheville Oct. 28, 29 and 30.

Moog is the creator of the audio synthesizer, and has arguably had the most influence on contemporary music. His creation in 1964 was different than other synthesizers in that it utilized a keyboard interface with the musicians. This allowed for infinite control of sound manipulation, and gave birth to a musical revolution. Moog spent the last thirty years of his life living in Asheville, and this is the second year it has been held there. The barcode below will take you to a podcast for a sampling of some of the bands in the 2011 Moogfest lineup. Tickets are available at www.ticketmaster

Scan it!

Scan this barcode to play a podcast from this years Moogfest lineup. Featuring Chromeo, Twin Shadow, and more...

Robert Moog and the world's first synthesizer

Things to do during fall break

by Karam Boeshaar

